BISMARCK GIRL FATAL VICTIM IN AUTO CRASH

Miss Eleanor Gustavison Dies
From Injuries Sustained
In Accident in Ohio

BROTHER IS INJURED

Was Motoring with Brother and Wife—Burial to be in Albert Lea, Minn.

Miss Eleanor Gustavison of Bismarck was fatally injured in an automobile accident at Norwalk, Ohio, Sunday morning, according to information reaching her sisters, Mrs. A. A. Jones and Mrs. W. E. Cole here. Miss Gustavison's brother, Rollo, and his wife, with whom she was riding, were injured in the accident and taken to a hospital.

A telegram received here about 9 o'clock Sunday morning stated that Miss Gustavison had been very seriously injured. A telephone message from a physician, received shortly before noon, stated that she had died from the injuries she received.

Details of the accident were lacking in the messages. Miss Gustavison, one of the best known girls of Bismarck, had gone to Detroit, Minn., to meet her brother and wife, and after a short outing, they were motoring to Tiffin, Ohio, where Rollo Gustavison is engaged in the drug business.

Norwalk is a short distance south-east of Sandusky, on Lake Erie, while Tiffin is about 100 miles southeast of Toledo.

Miss Gustavison was 22 years of age. She graduated from the Bismarck High School and was a student at the University of Minnesota. She would have been a senior next year. She was a member of the Phi Beta Phi society there, and had a host of friends both in Bismarck and at the university. She did not return to Bismarck after the close of the university year in June, but went on to visit with her brother.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Jones and Dr. Mrs. W. E. Cole left last night for Minneapolis, where they will meet the body, which will be taken to Albert Lea, and laid to rest beside her father and mother, who have been dead for several years.

Surviving relatives are Mrs. F. B. Probst, Minneapolis; Mrs. Jones; and Mrs. Cole, Bismarck; sisters; Harry G. and Sioux Falls, S. D.; Carl G. Albert, Lea; Gustav G. Detroit, Michigan; and Rollo, Tiffin, Ohio, brothers.

Death Almost Instantaneous
This afternoon a wire was received by S. W. Derrick from Mr. Jones in Minneapolis, which stated that the automobile accident was caused by a broken axle. Miss Gustavison was killed practically instantly, the wire said. Rollo, her brother, is in a very critical condition, it added.

The funeral of Miss Gustavison will be at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at Albert Lea. The Rev. George Buzze, formerly pastor of St. George's Episcopal church, Bismarck, of which Miss Gustavison was a member, will officiate.

JAS. M'GILLIC A PIONEER OF MANDAN, DIES

First Came to Bismarck in 1879 and Then Went into Business in Mandan

ILL FOR LONG TIME

James M. McGillic, pioneer resident of Mandan, died at 6:10 o'clock this morning following a serious illness of several weeks. He had been an invalid for the last two years. Mr. McGillic had been a resident of Mandan and Morton county since 1882.

His wife and four children survive. They are Register of Deeds James T. McGillic, Frank McGillic and Mrs. J. A. Murphy of Mandan and Mrs. Shay of Malone, N. Y.

Mr. McGillic, born of Scotch-Irish extraction in Malone, N. Y., March 21, 1854, made a profession of school teaching when he came to Bismarck in 1879. Later he went into partnership with his brother-in-law in Mandan, the firm being known as O'Rourke and McGillic. Mr. McGillic in a few years sold out to Mr. O'Rourke and went into the stock raising business, raising cattle and sheep. He was very successful, but trading instinct was strong in him and in 1902 he again went into business in Mandan, having a large grocery and meat market. He still retained large ranching interests.

Mr. McGillic exercised great influence in developing the Mandan school system as a member of the board, and was active in the Commercial Club's Catholic church. Mr. McGillic was twice married. His first wife was Mary O'Rourke of Malone, N. Y., who died in 1886 and by whom he had two children, Francis and Winnifred. On June 20, 1899, he was married to Miss Stella Cummins, who was a Morton county school teacher. They had three children, of whom survived James and Mary.

TELLS HOW TO BOOST YIELD IN NO. DAKOTA

Fargo, July 16.—Importance of cultivated crops and manure in securing high wheat yields has been demonstrated in trials conducted by the North Dakota Experiment Station, according to the annual report of Director P. F. Trowbridge.

An increase of 2.4 bushels per acre was secured in trials of Koda wheat where this crop followed a cultivated crop as compared with where it followed an uncultivated crop. The average of nine different rotations in which the effect of manure was tested gave an increased yield of 1.1 bushels of wheat per acre.

19 APPLY FOR TRAINING AT FORT SNELLING

Other Bismarck and Burleigh County Young Men May Seek Military Training

PURPOSE OF CAMP

Called "Patriotic Vacation" by Authorities—Plan of Camp Is Outlined

Nineteen applications have been made by Burleigh county boys for training in the Citizens' Military Training Camp to be conducted at Fort Snelling, Minnesota, beginning August 1. Authorities announced, however, that additional applications may be made, and the Bismarck Rotary club will be glad to enroll any boy of the city or county. The slogan of the camp is "Help Young Sam While You Play," and the camp also is announced as a "patriotic vacation."

An announcement of the camp authorities says:

"Hundreds of young men from the northwest have already been accepted for the Fort Snelling and Fort Des Moines Citizens' Military Training Camp during the month of August, and there is yet an opportunity for several hundred to apply and be accepted for this 'patriotic vacation.'"

"About half of every working day will be devoted to purely military training under the most competent instructors obtainable. The other half of working days, Wednesday and Saturday afternoons and Sundays, will be devoted to sports, entertainments, dances, trips to nearby points of interest and an all around good time. Except for the necessary time to attend church, amusements will be provided for such as desire them on Sundays."

"When war again comes to this country, there will be no young man who is physically fit and has good character, who has not had an opportunity to be of special service to the United States. The Citizens' Military Training Camp without costing the young man a cent, prepares him to serve as a private, a non-commissioned officer or an officer in any future war."

"The tax payer has been at great expense to educate all young men so that they may be better able to look after themselves. It seems only fair that a young man who is physically able should spare a little of his time in educating himself so that he may be better able to look after the interest of the government in emergencies."

"Those attending the camp may walk, swim or ride to it, but however they go they will be paid five cents per mile for the official distance by railroad to and from their homes. It is suggested that boys who come in motor cars fill up their tanks with friends, as each will draw five cents per mile and will thus save a good margin over expenses."

Letter From Father
A number of letters from parents of boys who have attended civilian camps also are given. George Boelter of Arena wrote as follows:

"In reply to the above will say that I am well satisfied with your training camp at Fort Snelling where my son has been for two years. He expects to go this year again. It certainly has done him lots of good. I also have another son ready to go this summer if he can get in. So far the boy has been well satisfied and has no complaint to make."

DEVINE SEEKS FAIR EXHIBITS

Commissioner of Immigration To Visit Many Cities

Personal solicitation of exhibits to be sent by counties of North Dakota to county fairs in Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota and Wisconsin will be started this week by Joseph M. Devine, commissioner of immigration.

Because of the small fund available for immigration work, Mr. Devine plans to put before the people of other states the facts as to North Dakota's agricultural accomplishments and possibilities through exhibits at county fairs.

He has interviewed a Bismarck Association of Commerce committee plans a meeting with business men in Jamestown early in August and in the meantime may meet business men in Carrington, Minot and Williston.

"We want to show the people of the other states that we can raise as good products as they can, and cheaper," he said. Mr. Devine believes the future of the state lies in diversification, particularly in the milk cow, corn and hog raising and poultry, and wants exhibits in the other states to emphasize the possibilities of North Dakota other than as a grain raising state.

LATE RUSH OF VOTES TO SWELL GOPHER TOTAL

Is Light in Country Early. But Increases as Balloting Goes on in Minnesota

ELECTING SENATOR

Voters in Gopher State Will Select Either a Harding or La Follette Man

St. Paul, July 16.—Minnesota today is polling a vote far in excess of the 300,000 cast in the June primary, reports from representative counties at noon indicated. With weather conditions ideal the morning vote greatly exceeded the balloting during the same period in the primaries and if the ratio is maintained the vote for the state will amount to around 500,000.

St. Paul, July 16.—Voters of Minnesota are today writing the verdict in the unprecedented contest involving the selection of a United States Senator in succession to the late Knute Nelson.

In 5,520 polling precincts ballots are being marked, determining whether a supporter of the Harding administration shall go to the senate or whether this state will throw its complete senatorial strength to the La Follette group. While there are three candidates it is between Governor J. A. O. Prew, Republican, and a Harding adherent, and Magnus Johnson, Former-Laborite, a Robert La Follette supporter, that the real contest lies.

James A. Carley, state senator and a Democratic choice, is the third candidate and even his close political friends counted him out of the race before the polls opened at 6 a. m. today.

The election ends a campaign unusual in the political annals of the state. Called specially to fill the vacancy Senator Nelson's death created the primary June 18 was marked by apathetic balloting that attracted only a few more than 300,000 of the state's 600,000 voters. It had been expected that Governor Prew would resign and accept appointment to the senate, but the chief executive, acting on an opinion by the state's attorney general's office held that such procedure would be illegal and he called for the special primary and election followed.

Immediately after the primary there was no apparent change in the attitude of the average voter, political spell-binders cast their spell in vain and indications were that today's election would roll around with a repetition of the primary vote in prospect.

Early light vote in the rural districts and heavier vote in the cities and towns.

PHYSICIANS TO BACK LIQUOR RULING, CLAIM

Head of American Medical Association Says Right to Prescribe Is Inherent

Chicago, July 16.—The recent decision of Federal Judge George Bourquin at Helena, Mont., holding unconstitutional that portion of the Volstead act limiting the amount of alcohol liquor that may be prescribed by a physician is "absolutely correct," and will have the endorsement of the American medical profession, according to a statement made by Dr. William Allen Pusey, president of the American Medical association today. "Medicine is a science," said Dr. Pusey. "And if alcohol is a medicine it is as illogical for law-making bodies to say how it shall be used as it is for such a body to attempt to regulate the use of quinine or any other medicine."

"I believe that the Montana decision is very important and that the body of the American medical profession regardless of 'wet' or 'dry' personal sentiment will agree with Judge Bourquin's holdings."

AUTOS PASS 100,000 MARK

North Dakota has passed the 100,000 mark in motor vehicles.

There are today about 102,000 passenger automobiles and trucks in North Dakota, J. P. Tucker, motor vehicle registrar said, or almost one vehicle for every six people in the state.

The number of passenger cars on June 30 was 96,000, trucks 3,000, motorcycles, 500. The number registered today is approximately 102,000, he said.

LIQUOR QUESTION HOTLY DEBATED IN AUSTRALIA, SAYS VISITOR HERE

Wealthy Sheep Rancher, Touring United States, Stops in Bismarck on His Way to the West Coast—Says Prohibition Sentiment Is Growing in Australia, But Sees Light Wines and Beer Coming Back in U.S.

People in far-off Australia are interested in industrial and agricultural life in America, but more interested in the liquor question, H. S. Cusack of Sydney, Australia, visitor in Bismarck Sunday, is writing letters to Australian newspapers of his automobile tour of the United States. He emphasizes his study of the liquor question, he said.

Mr. Cusack described himself as "reasonably wet." He declared his belief that America would come back to light wines and beer. Prohibition sentiment in Australia is growing very rapidly, he said, and indicated he believed the traffic might ultimately be restricted there to light wines and beer sold under government monopoly.

Accompanied by his wife and J. B. Powell, Mr. Cusack has traveled 10,000 miles, covering the southern central and eastern states. He will visit Yellowstone park, Colorado and northern California before his return to the Antipodes.

While he owns a large sheep ranch in Australia his trip through the United States is to study conditions in the fruit industry, as well as under irrigation and experiments show that citrus fruits, raisin grapes, and similar fruits are well-adapted to the climate of Australia, water only being lacking.

Memo sheep do admirably well in the warm Australian atmosphere, he said. The wool clip, which is just commencing, promises to be heavy and as the United States is a heavy buyer, Mr. Cusack is interested in our sheep and wool market.

NEW DIRECTORS ARE NAMED BY GROWERS' BODY

North Dakota Wheat Growers Association Officers Are Chosen

Grand Forks, N. D., July 16.—Complete returns of the annual election of directors of the North Dakota Wheat Growers Association have been received at the headquarters at Grand Forks. Elections were held on July 10, at central points in the twenty districts of the state, the members in each district choosing one director to represent them on the board. Spirited contests were held in several districts, and a large vote was polled in most of the twenty districts.

The annual meeting of the association will be held Tuesday, July 17, at the hotel office, at which time the votes will be canvassed by the retiring board and the new members installed. The board will also choose officers at that time, consisting of a president, secretary and treasurer.

Nine of the twenty directors were re-elected. Nine others of the retiring board were not candidates for re-election, due to the fact that the state was re-districted previous to the election to give the western portion of the state a more equitable representation on the board. FRANCE STANDS BY TREATY, HE TELLS CROWD

Premier Reaffirms Declarations in Speech Delivered To Sunday Crowd

BRITISH GO AHEAD

Hope to Find Some Means of Placating French Premier in His Attitude

London, July 16.—British hopes assuming allied leadership in negotiations for a reparations settlement with Germany are considered to have had a serious setback during the week-end by reason of the speech of Premier Poincaré of France Sunday.

Nevertheless, British officials, who today resumed the task of drafting a reply to the latest German offer, were not so sure that the situation was so serious as the news from Paris seems to indicate.

The British attitude as reflected in official circles is that the least said about the Poincaré address the better. It is recognized that the atmosphere of a war memorial unveiling was not a suitable one for the announcement of any change in French policy and the fact that Premier Poincaré merely reaffirmed the rigid French views offered some little encouragement.

The British, it is indicated, will proceed with drafting the note just as if M. Poincaré had not spoken. The completed draft probably will go to the cabinet tomorrow.

The French premier's announcement has left the British undaunted in their efforts to make proposals which are acceptable to the allies. As far as expressed fear that a new international reparations committee would be nothing more than "a coalition of the interests opposed to us," the British reply is that such a commission can only be formed with strict legal regard to the treaty of Versailles. The only favorable comment in the morning newspapers is made by the Morning Post which favors maintenance of the entente at all costs.

POINCARÉ'S SPEECH

Fenlis, France, July 16.—(By the Associated Press).—In this little town the point nearest Paris held by the Germans on their attempt to reach the capital Premier Poincaré gave yesterday what is considered his preliminary answer to Great Britain's reparations attitude.

His real answer, of course, will be in reply to the note that Great Britain will propose as a joint allied reply to Germany.

France, he asserted, stands unshakably for the complete execution of the treaty of Versailles and the full payment by Germany of 132 billion gold marks, the sum fixed at the London conference.

France, he added, opposes the appointment of an international finance committee to reconsider Germany's debt and supplant the reparations commission.

No more concessions will be made by France, was the gist of his address.

FOSTER COUNTY GETS PRIZES AT FAIR AT FARGO

Fargo, N. D., July 16.—Foster county captured more than half of all prizes offered for exhibits of grain, grasses, forage seeds, sheep grain and corn at the Inter-State Fair here this week, taking 96 of 184 places.

Seventy-five farmers of the county finished the prize-winning exhibit according to County Agent C. C. Lake, who is in charge of the Foster county display. The exhibits were obtained as the result of nine local home products shows held in the county last fall by the county agent. Prize-winning exhibits at the local home products shows were ten entered in a county show at Carrington, and the exhibits taking the first three places there were sent to the Fargo fair.

In addition to the many prizes won by the individual exhibits the county exhibit captured first place at the fair. Features of the county exhibit included a log cabin constructed of corn with a park, drive and walks, all made from seeds. The centerpiece was a map of the state showing the rivers and other topographical features and the location of Foster county, all worked out with seeds. Arthur Brewster, Kessal farmer, prepared this exhibit.

BLUME HEADS SCHOOLS

Dickinson, July 16.—W. A. Blume was elected president of the Dickinson board of education for the coming year. A. C. Pagenkopf, recently chosen to serve as director for a three year term, qualified and took his seat at this meeting. Mr. Pagenkopf succeeds C. E. Starke who served for a three year term. Andrew Erdahl was re-appointed as clerk.

There will be races, including a half-mile running race, one-third mile running race, pony race, relay race, potato race, wild horse race, slow horse race, slow auto race. Then there's a baseball game between the leaders in the Emmons Logan County League, a dance at night, real cow boys and Indian riders, best bucking horses in the west and a lot of other sports.

NINE MONTHS LOANS PLAN OF NEW U. S. BANK

Farmers Can Borrow Money To Buy Cows and Other Livestock, Says Young

Valley City, July 16.—Congressman George M. Young of this city returned from St. Paul today, where he had gone to interview officials of the New Federal Intermediate Credit Bank. There were a number of matters which he wished to go over with them, but particularly he wanted them to agree to make advances or loans for a period of three years, but the Federal Farm Loan Board at Washington thought it best to make the loans for a period of only nine months to begin with. The officials at St. Paul however gave Mr. Young positive assurance that such loans would be renewed a sufficient number of times to make the loan cover at least three years.

Mr. Young says that the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank at St. Paul is fully organized and has available for loaning $55,000,000. Their plan is to loan the money chiefly through locally organized loan companies in the various localities, such companies to have a capital of not less than $10,000, and with such capital they can borrow up to ten times the amount of their capital by furnishing collateral notes covering loans made in excess of the amounts borrowed. In other words, the bank at St. Paul will loan up to 75 per cent of the value of the security given. It will therefore be seen that this loan wheat farmers under this law desire to borrow money to buy cows, and if they have personal property, such as land, which they will be in position to do so by giving a mortgage on the stock which they buy plus a mortgage upon other personal property unencumbered to the extent of 25 per cent of the value of the cows.

The rate of interest is seven per cent.

Reduce Acreage. Congressman Young is firmly of the opinion that wheat farmers should substantially reduce their acreage and that many cattle loan companies should be organized throughout the state in order to permit such wheat farmers to get into the raising of livestock, particularly cows.

The bankers and others living in the cities and towns can be very helpful in the organizing of such loan companies and can do much to put the state on a more sound economic footing.

An announcement of the camp authorities says: "Hundreds of young men from the northwest have already been accepted for the Fort Snelling and Fort Des Moines Citizens' Military Training Camp during the month of August, and there is yet an opportunity for several hundred to apply and be accepted for this 'patriotic vacation.'"

"About half of every working day will be devoted to purely military training under the most competent instructors obtaining. The other half of working days, Wednesday and Saturday afternoons and Sundays, will be devoted to sports, entertainments, dances, trips to nearby points of interest and an all around good time. Except for the necessary time to attend church, amusements will be provided for such as desire them on Sundays.

"When war again comes to this country, there will be no young man who is physically fit and has good character, who has not had an opportunity to be of special service to the United States. The Citizens' Military Training Camps without costing the young man a cent, prepares him to serve as a private, a non-commissioned officer or an officer in any future war.

"The tax payer has been at great expense to educate all young men so that they may be better able to look after themselves. It seems on the face of it, a young man who is physically able should spare a little of his time in educating himself so that he may be better able to look after the interest of the government in emergencies.

"Those attending the camp may walk, swim or ride to it, but however they go they will be paid five cents per mile for the official distance by railroad to and from their homes. It is suggested that boys who come in motor cars fill up their cars with friends, as each will draw five cents per mile and will thus save a good margin over expenses."

Letter From Father

A number of letters from parents of boys who have attended civilian camps also are given. George Boulter of Arena wrote as follows: "In reply to the above will say that I am well satisfied with your training camp at Fort Snelling where my son has been for two years. He expects to go this year again. It certainly has done him lots of good. I also have another son ready to go this summer if he can get in. So far the boy has been well satisfied and has no complaint to make."

DEVINE SEEKS FAIR EXHIBITS

Commissioner of Immigration To Visit Many Cities

Personal solicitation of exhibits to be sent by counties of North Dakota to county fairs in Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota and Wisconsin will be started this week by Joseph M. Devine, commissioner of immigration.

Because of the small fund available for immigration work, Mr. Devine plans to put before the people of other states the facts as to North Dakota's agricultural accomplishments and possibilities through exhibits at county fairs.

He has interviewed a Bismarck Association of Commerce committee plans a meeting with business men in Jamestown early in August and in the meantime may meet business men in Carrington, Minot and Williston.

"We want to show the people of the other states that we can raise as good products as they can, and cheaply," he said. Mr. Devine believes the future of the state lies in diversification, particularly in the milk cow, corn and hog raising and poultry, and wants exhibits in the other states to emphasize the possibilities of North Dakota other than as a grain raising state.

LATE RUSH OF VOTES TO SWELL GOPHER TOTAL

Is Light in Country Early. But Increases as Balloting Goes on in Minnesota

ELECTING SENATOR

Voters in Gopher State Will Select Either a Harding or La Follette Man

St. Paul, July 16.—Minnesota today is polling a vote far in excess of the 300,000 cast in the June primary, reports from representative counties at noon indicated. With weather conditions ideal the morning vote greatly exceeded the balloting during the same period in the primaries and if the ratio is maintained the vote for the state will amount to around 500,000.

St. Paul, July 16.—Voters of Minnesota are today writing the verdict in the unprecedented contest involving the selection of a United States Senator in succession to the late Knute Nelson.

In 3,520 polling precincts ballots are being marked, determining whether a supporter of the Harding administration shall go to the senate or whether this state will throw its complete senatorial strength to the La Follette group. While there are three candidates, it is between Governor J. A. O. Preus, Republican, and a Harding adherent, and Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Laborite, a Robert La Follette supporter, that the real contest lies.

James A. Carley, state senator and a Democratic choice, is the third candidate but even his close political friends counted him out of the race before the polls opened at 6 a. m. today.

The election ends a campaign unusual in the political annals of the state. Called specially to fill the vacancy, Senator Nelson's death created the primary June 18 was marked by apathetic balloting that attracted only a few more than 300,000 of the state's 800,000 voters. It had been expected that Governor Preus would resign and accept the nomination to the senate, but the chief executive, acting on an opinion by the state's attorney-general's office held that such procedure would be illegal and his call for the special primary and election followed.

Immediately after the primary there was more indicated a comparatively light vote in the rural districts and a heavier vote in the cities and towns.

PHYSICIANS TO BACK LIQUOR RULING, CLAIM

Head of American Medical Association Says Right to Prescribe Is Inherent

Chicago, July 16.—The recent decision of Federal Judge George Bourquin at Helena, Mont., holding unconstitutional that portion of the Volstead act limiting the amount of alcohol liquor that a physician may prescribe is "absolutely correct" and will have the endorsement of the American medical profession, according to a statement made by Dr. William Allen Pusey, president of the American Medical association today.

"Medicine is a science," said Dr. Pusey. "And if alcohol is a medicine it is as illogical for law-making bodies to say how it shall be used as it is for such a body to attempt to regulate the use of quinine or any other medicine."

"I believe that the Montana decision is very important and that the body of the American medical profession regardless of 'wet' or 'dry' personal sentiment will agree with Judge Bourquin's holdings."

AUTOS PASS 100,000 MARK

North Dakota has passed the 100,000 mark in motor vehicles.

There are today about 102,000 passenger automobiles and trucks in North Dakota, J. P. Tucker, motor vehicle registrar said, or almost one vehicle for every six people in the state.

The number of passenger cars on June 30 was 96,000, trucks 3,000, motorcycles, 500. The number registered today is approximately 102,000, he said.

LIQUOR QUESTION HOTLY DEBATED IN AUSTRALIA, SAYS VISITOR HERE

Wealthy Sheep Rancher, Touring United States, Stops in Bismarck on His Way to the West Coast — Says Prohibition Sentiment Is Growing in Australia, But Sees Light Wines and Beer Coming Back in U. S.

People in far-off Australia are interested in industrial and agricultural life in America, but more interested in the liquor question. It is S. Cusack of Sydney, Australia, visitor in Bismarck Sunday, is writing letters to Australian newspapers of his automobile tour of the United States. He emphasizes his study of the liquor question, he said.

Mr. Cusack described himself as "reasonably wet." He declared his belief that America would come back to light wines and beer. Prohibition sentiment in Australia is growing very rapidly, he said, and indicated he believed the traffic might ultimately be restricted there to light wines and beer sold under government monopoly. Accompanied by his wife and J. B. Powell, Mr. Cusack has traveled 10,000 miles, covering the southern central and eastern states. He will visit Yellowstone park, Colorado and northern California before his return to the Antipodes.

While he owns a large sheep ranch in Australia his trip through the United States is to study conditions in the fruit industry, as large areas of Australia are being put under irrigation and experiments show that citrus fruits, raisin grapes, and similar fruits are well adapted to the climate of Australia, water only being lacking.

Merino sheep do admirably well in the warm Australian atmosphere, he said. The wool clip, which is just commencing, promises to be heavy and as the United States is a heavy buyer, Mr. Cusack is interested in our sheep and wool market.

North Dakota Wheat Growers Association Officers Are Chosen

Grand Forks, N. D., July 16.—Complete returns of the annual election of directors of the North Dakota Wheat Growers Association have been received at the headquarters at Grand Forks. Elections were held on July 10, at central points in the twenty districts of the state, the members in each district choosing one director to represent them on the board. Spirited contests were held in several districts, and a large vote was polled in most of the twenty districts.

The annual meeting of the association will be held Tuesday, July 17 at the head office here, at which time the votes will be canvassed by the retiring board and the new members installed. The board will also choose officers at that time, consisting of a president, secretary and treasurer.

Nine of the twenty directors were re-elected. Nine others of the retiring board were not candidates for re-election, due to the fact that the state was re-districted previous to the election to give the western portion of the state a more equitable representation on the board. In a former trial judgment of $2,080.50 was granted him against Mrs. Gruenberg. Later a trial was held, it being alleged by the plaintiff that Mr. Gruenberg had transferred property to his wife to avoid judgment. Mr. Gruenberg was sustained in this suit, and the suit against his wife, said to have been the owner of the car, followed.

Judge Jansons has granted a divorce to Clark M. Fadden from Rose Fadden. The defendant was served with legal papers in Miles City, Mont. The judgment found that the wife deserted her husband.

FRANCE STANDS BY TREATY, HE TELLS CROWD

Premier Reaffirms Declarations in Speech Delivered To Sunday Crowd

BRITISH GO AHEAD

Hope to Find Some Means of Placating French Premier In His Attitude

London, July 16.—British hopes assuming allied leadership in negotiations for a reparations settlement with Germany are considered to have had a serious setback during the week-end by reason of the speech of Premier Poincare of France Sunday.

Nevertheless British officials, who today resumed the task of drafting a reply to the latest German offer, were not so sure that the situation was so serious as the news from Paris seems to indicate. The British attitude as reflected in official circles is that the least said about the Poincare address the better. It is recognized that the atmosphere of any change in French policy and the fact that Premier Poincare merely reaffirmed the rigid French views offered some little encouragement.

The British, it is indicated, will proceed with drafting the note just as if M. Poincare had not spoken. The completed draft probably will go to the cabinet tomorrow.

The French premier's announcement has left the British undaunted in their efforts to make proposals which will be acceptable to the allies. As for his expressed fear that a new international reparations committee would be nothing more than "a coalition of the interests opposed to us" the British reply is that such a commission can easily be formed with strict legal regard to the treaty of Versailles if the allies are willing. The only favorable comment in the morning newspapers is made by the Morning Post which favors maintenance of the entente at all costs.

POINCARE'S SPEECH

Fenlis, France, July 16.—(By the Associated Press)—In this little town the point nearest Paris held by the Germans on their attempt to reach the capital Premier Poincare gave yesterday what is considered his preliminary answer to Great Britain's reparations attitude.

His real answer, of course, will be in reply to the note that Great Britain will propose as a joint allied reply to Germany.

France, he asserted, stands unalterably for the complete execution of the treaty of Versailles and the full payment by Germany of 132 billion gold marks, the sum fixed at the London conference.

France, he added, opposes the appointment of an international financial committee to reconsider Germany's debt and to supplant the reparations commission.

FOSTER COUNTY GETS PRIZES AT FAIR AT FARGO

Fargo, N. D., July 16.—Foster county captured more than half of all prizes offered for exhibits of grain, grasses, forage seeds, sheep grain and corn at the Inter-State Fair here this week, taking 96 of 184 places.

Seventy-five farmers of the county furnished the prize-winning exhibits, according to County Agent C. C. Lake, who is in charge of the Foster county display. The exhibits were obtained as the result of nine local home products shows held in the county last fall by the county agent. Prize-winning exhibits at the local home products shows were ten entered in a county show at Carrington, and the exhibits taking the first three places there were sent to the Fargo fair.

In addition to the many prizes won by the individual exhibits the county exhibit captured first place at the fair. Features of the county exhibit included a log cabin constructed of corn with a park, drive and walks, all made from seeds. The centerpiece was a map of the state showing the rivers and other topographical features and the location of Foster county; all worked out with seeds. Arthur Brown, Kessel farmer, prepared this exhibit.

SIX CONVICTS MAKE ESCAPE

Get Away After Beating Guard in Pennsylvania Prison

Philadelphia, July 14.—Six convicts escaped from the eastern state penitentiary today after beating a guard. They held up a motor truck and fled. The escape was daring. A woman living in Corinthian avenue, which borders the eastern side of the institution, was the first person to see the men. They appeared on the top of the 40-foot wall and lowered two ropes. The men appeared to be calm but lowered themselves swiftly. Across the street was a closed car in which the convicts tried to steal but found the door locked. "About this time a small motor truck came along and one of the convicts stopped the driver at the point of a pistol and all piled in. The vehicle sped north and then turned west.

STEWED GEESE

London, July 14.—A flock of geese on a farmhouse near Vevey, recently drank copiously of some cordial. They immediately started a riot. The farmer, fearing they were poisoned, plucked their feathers, which he hoped to sell, and then threw the fowl in a barnhouse. The next morning he was surprised to see the geese come sheepishly out of the barn, still a bit woolly, but otherwise no different than a human being on the morning after.

NOT GUILTY

Newark, N. J., July 14.—A supreme court jury returned a verdict of not guilty against Mrs. Mary F. Creighton last night and for the second time in three weeks she was acquitted of a charge of murder.

U. S. MOVES TO KEEP TREATY

Naval Experts Take up Plans For Disposing of Battleships

Washington, July 14.—Definite steps toward fulfilling the terms of the naval limitation treaty now ratified by all the powers were taken today by Secretary Denby when he called a meeting of the naval council to arrange details of scrapping the battleships abandoned under the limitation program.

Although no actual scrapping will take place until ratification has formally taken place, two naval boards will be appointed immediately, one to consider methods of scrapping and the other to take up cancellation of contracts for vessels which are now being built.

Tentative plans for scrapping, drawn up sometime ago, are said to be so nearly complete that the first board would be able to report almost immediately. The cancellation board, however, will have considerable detailed work to do.

FIRE RAZES IDAHO TOWN, GREAT LOSS

Misery Stalks in Wake of Conflagration which Swept Wallace, Idaho

Wallace, Idaho, July 14.—Misery stalks in the little towns of Burke and Mace, minute centers about seven miles east of here, following a devastating fire starting about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon and sweeping its way through a mile and a half of stores, homes and mining works. At midnight no deaths had been reported. The entire business section of Burke was destroyed and virtually every home was in ruins. The loss is put at $1,500,000.

Mace, adjoining Burke on the west, is only partly destroyed, the flames having been fanned by a west wind away from the conflagration's starting place.

About 1,000 persons are said to be homeless.

It was announced by officials of the Hercules Mining company that the Hercules plant had been saved. Loss to the Hercules company is estimated by local mining men at between $750,000 and $1,000,000. The electric hoist of the Hercules, one of the largest in the world, was burned.

Red cross officials from Wallace have been rushed to the town with food and clothing for the homeless.

The origin of the fire is still unknown, although many believe it was started by a spark from a locomotive.

BOY, 11, CAUSE OF RAIL CRASH

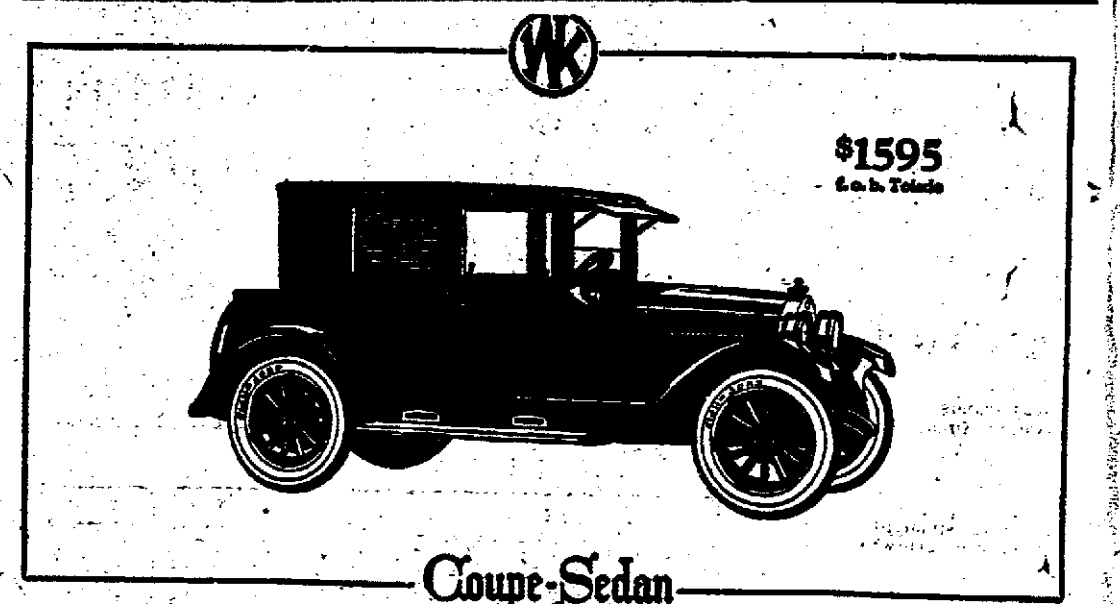

Three Men Died in Montana as Result of Switch Throwing

Butte, Montana, July 14.—A coroner's jury at Whitehall yesterday found that Thomas Barry, engineer, Albert Jacobs, Clifford Mally and J. Brouillette came to their death at Gladstone, Apr. 10, when a Burlington train ran into an open switch which was thrown by a boy.

The jury exonerated the Northern Pacific railroad on whose line the train was being operated of any responsibility in the death of Jacobs, Mally and Brouillette because they were "dead heading" their way on the train.

PRESIDENT TO TOUR BEYOND RAILROAD END

Party Started on a 90-Mile Trip to Over Richardson Trail to McCarty

Fairbanks, Alaska, July 16.—Having reached the northern end of state train transportation President Harding proposed today to go further into the interior of Alaska by automobile. President and Mrs. Harding and a portion of their party will start from here on an automobile trip of 90 miles over Richardson trail to McCarty, on the Tenana river. The ride will take five hours. It was originally planned that the Presidential party should go over the trail, 372 miles to Thitina, and there take the copper river and Northwestern railroad to the Port of Cordova, but the trip was abandoned as too strenuous much to the regret of Mrs. Harding, who has been urging it.

"L" CARS ARE TELESOPED

Seven Injured in New York Early This Morning

New York, July 16.—Two wooden coaches of a crowded elevated train were telescoped and crushed, injuring seven passengers when it crashed into the rear of an empty subway train in the Bronx. The collision occurred opposite the Interborough parking yards where both elevated and subway trains travel the overhead structure.

Transportation company officials attributed the accident to the failure of switchmen to move the subway train, which was being groomed for its first morning run, and to rain which caused the brakes of the elevated to slip when the motorman, rounding a curve, was confronted by the standing train.

Amateurs Cut Off By New Seven-Way Radio-Phone Cable

Avalon, Santa Catalina Island, July 16.—Making seven conversations flow where but one flowed before is the engineering achievement credited to telephone engineers, who have just finished laying what is said to be the world's first one-pair submarine telephone cable between this island off the Southern California coast and the mainland, 25 miles away.

Before the introduction of radio telephony, island dwellers here had to depend on the mails for communication. With the wireless came relief of a sort for with a radio "link bridge" linking the island telephone line with the vast network of wires covering the mainland, one could carry on a conversation with any point in the United States.

Only one conversation could be carried on at a time by this method, however, and the conversation usually found its way into thousands of amateur radio sets as well as the telephone company's receiving device, thus losing all vestige of privacy. The last-mentioned difficulty was overcome recently by means of a word-scrambling device which made island telephone conversations unintelligible to "outside" receiving sets.

Now that the one-pair cable is in place, however, as many as seven conversations can be carried on simultaneously between Avalon and the mainland. The interesting feature of the one-pair cable is that the seven conversations flow simultaneously over a single strand of copper wire in the center of the cable, a system of varied frequencies similar to that used in

AFTERMATH OF BIG BALLOON RACE

Basket Had Been Cut From Gas Bag

After word was received by a passing steamer that a gas bag had been seen 25 miles out of Port Stanley, Ont., Canada, the tug Frank H. Stanley and the seaplane Nina, owned by the Aeromarine Airways Company, started for the location.

They found the bag of the lost U. S. navy balloon A-6698, in which Lieutenants Roth and Null started as the new entrant in the Independence balloon race on July 4. Later searchers found bodies believed to be those of the missing men.

With the bag was found clothing of the balloonists, an American flag, a log book and some food. Photo shows the crew of the tug hauling the bag aboard. It is the first time a tug and a seaplane recovered a wrecked balloon. Photo was taken from the seaplane.

radio telephony making this possible.

The ship which laid the cable is as interesting as the engineering achievement in which it played a part. It is the United States Army cable ship Dellwood, which came all the way from Alaska to pay out the 60 miles of heavily insulated and armored wire across the channel separating Santa Catalina Island from the mainland. The channel is only 25 miles wide, but its unusual depth required 30 miles each for the two cable lines, which traverse the ocean bed two miles apart and come together at the mainland and island terminals.

The Dellwood's Filipino cable crew is used to deep-water jobs, however. Filipinos make the best cablemen obtainable, according to Captain Persons, in charge of the vessel's laying and repair operations.

"Our Filipinos don't know what danger is," he said, referring to the perils encountered along the north Alaskan coast, where the Dellwood has been at work for the past week repairing the 20-year-old Washington-Alaska cable, operated between Seattle and Sitka by the United States Army. "When a man goes out over the overhanging bow in a boatswain's chair to cut a steel cable with a scale blowing a heavy sea running, and ice breaking against the ship, he can't be troubled with a yellow streak. Our Filipinos do that and similar stunts every day in Alaskan waters."

The Dellwood's mechanical equipment for its task included five huge tanks, capable of holding 1,700 miles of deep-sea cable wound about hollow steel cores. On the forward deck is the cable "picking up" machine, which brings up the worn-out cable on a repair job, and on the after deck is the "paying out" machine which brings the cable up out of the tanks in the hold and pays it out over the stern onto the ocean floor.

British Writer Fears For Future Of Yugoslavia

London, July 16.—Yugoslavia is perilously near dissolution, says a correspondent of the Sunday Observer. He believes its condition may have widespread influence upon the unstable architecture of European peace. If Yugoslavia is to be saved, he says, it can be done only by an immediate and extensive application of the principles of non-coercion and federalism.

After giving a history of the foundation of the new kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes in 1918, which "promised to be one of the most stable and promising components of post-war Europe," the correspondent describes the act of union signed by the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes at Zagreb in 1918, assuring the principal racial elements local autonomy and local administration. "It was," says he, "a constitution in defiance to the cultural and political differences which would naturally exist between a nation whose whole history was interlocked with that of Turkey, and one which had been educated, however unwillingly, in the Austrian school. But it was never even tried."

The Belgrade Government, the writer adds, has abolished the local parliaments, imposed a constitution that is virtually a Serbian empire, and has repeatedly imprisoned Stephen Radich, the Croat national leader. This policy is the work of the coalition of Radicals and Democrats, of "the aged and incalculable Pashich, a habitual Serbian prime minister now nearly eighty, and Preb'povich, a man of science and violent mind, who, believing centralization the best government for the new state, is ready to go to any length except the use of tact in attaining it."

The correspondent refers to the impossibility of getting reliable news from the Balkan countries and secession states, and says they are as isolated from one another as if they were separate islands in the Pacific. "Budapest," he declares, "does not know what is happening in Vienna; Trieste has the most fantastic ideas of what is going on a few miles away over the

The Two Balloonists

By NEA Service. INDIANAPOLIS, July 16.—Number 9 did it. That's what friends say about the fate of Lieutenants L. J. Roth (left), Lakehurst, N. J., pilot of the navy balloon A-6698, which fell into Lake Erie while in the national balloon race. Lieutenant Roth told newspaper men just before he and his aide, Lieutenant Telford B. Null (right), also of Lakehurst, entered the basket, that he did not exactly relish having his entry numbered "9."

"I had that number in the national race from Birmingham, Ala., two years ago, and early in the race I ran into one of the worst storms I ever encountered and was forced out."

"Oh, well, maybe number 9 will bring me luck this time. Maybe I have a wonderful chance to win." Lieutenant Roth's body was found in Lake Erie July 9.

Old Glory Recovered

The seaplane Nina, which put out from Cleveland and is owned by the Aeromarine Airways Company, co-operating with the tug Frank H. Stanley, recovered the gas bag of the lost navy balloon. With it was found the flag carried by the ill-fated balloonists, Lieutenants L. J. Roth and T. B. Null.

Some clothing also was found. This photo shows Harry Bruno (seated), vice president of the Aeromarine Airways, Inc., handing over the flag to R. H. Richards, assistant pilot of the Nina, after returning from the trip.

Jugoslav border. The traveler soon finds that each and every state regards itself as the one survival of civilization in a world of savage anarchy. The new states are important constitutional entities, capable of reacting seriously upon the history of Europe, and are not mere fragments of the creative imagination of a comic peace conference."

RECEIVER IS NOW HANDLING EQUITY PLANT

Temporary Receivership. For Packing Plant Is Effective Today

Fargo, July 16.—Receivership of the Equity Co-operative Packing company went into effect today when John Martin, appointed receiver Saturday by District Judge Cole, took charge of the company's property. An order to show cause why the temporary receivership should not be made permanent is made returnable July 21.

In the complaint filed for the appointment of a receiver by Fargo stockholders of the company it is alleged the company is insolvent and that officers who were in charge were incompetent to handle its business or extricate it from its financial difficulties.

Among other things the complaint charges that of the paid-up capital of the concern $1,500,000, has been dissipated through mismanagement of its affairs and that its managing officers allowed mortgages and other liens to be foreclosed without making any effort to prevent foreclosure. Martin is the second receiver to be appointed in the affairs of the company. In January Ira J. Larson was appointed receiver but the receivership was dissolved by mutual agreement of the parties concerned.

ARE YOU HAPPILY WED? PROVE IT

This Couple Did, So Jury Judged Them Champions

TOM GROVES AND HIS WIFE, JUDGED THE HAPPIEST MARRIED COUPLE IN GREAT BRITAIN, WITH THEIR TWO CHILDREN, AND REV. HERBERT DUNNICO, COUNSELLOR IN WIG AND GOWN, WHO ARGUED THEIR CASE.

Britain's Happiest Married Couple Tell Their Rules

MEN
1. Pick out a wife closest to your ideal of womanhood.
2. Remember that she is a human being like yourself, with the same weaknesses, feelings, and rights.
3. See that there is give and take on both sides.

By NEA Service. London, July 16.—Here's a question for married folks to ponder: "Can you prove to a jury that you're happily married?"

The question has just been decided. A court has picked out the champion married couple of the British Isles. They took home the bacon literally.

Honors for 1923 were awarded Tom Groves, labor member of Parliament, and his wife. Couples from all over Great Britain took part in the contest before a quaint court in a village in Essex.

Custom centuries old decrees that every year there shall meet at Dunmow a court which awards the Dunmow "tithe of bacon" to the couple judged to comply with the conditions set forth in this ancient rhyme: You shall state by custom of confession That you ne'er made nuptial transgression. Nor since you were married man and wife, By household brawls or contentious strife Or otherwise at bed or board Offended each other by deed or word. Or in a twelve-month and a day Repented not in thought any way. Or since the parish clerk said Amen Wished yourselves unmarried again; But continued true and in desire As when you joined hands in holy quire.

The jury was made up of six of the prettiest girls in the district, and six young bachelors. Groves, who is 33, and his wife, two years younger, had to submit to a searching examination into their married life. They had to produce testimonials from people who knew them.

Neighbors were called to testify in support of the claim that for a year and a day husband and wife had not quarreled or in any way given evidence of regretting their trip to the altar.

Counselors in wigs and gowns, following all the ancient rites and ceremonies, appeared for the various claimants. Rev. Herbert Dunnico was counsel for Mr. and Mrs. Groves, who had their children on hand to help impress the jury.

Efforts to trap the couple were futile. It was suggested that Groves' attendance at frequent all night sessions of the House of Commons might have been a severe strain on Mrs. Groves' faith. But he repelled this insinuation by proving that he had been in constant telephone communication with his wife whenever he had to be away all night.

"The most important rule for a husband to be happy," says Groves, "is to model your wife on your ideal. My ideal was Agnes in Dickens' 'David Copperfield.' Don't regard your wife as an angel, any better than you are, or any worse. And in the family give and take, don't do all the giving yourself and expect her to do all the taking."

"People are wrong who think common interests form the key to married happiness," says Mrs. Groves. "Wives who are suspicious of their husbands make a mistake. A wife's greatest duty is to make the home a resting place."

Olson met two pleasant spoken men at his hotel, 317 Washington avenue S., he told police. They went for a walk on Park avenue. They walked for some blocks. Then, Olson said, the men began to talk about buying land at Larimore.

"Have you got any money?" they asked.

"Sure," Olson said. "I've got $800."

Ten minutes later, he had only a headache. The men were gone, and so was the $800.

"Now I'm going home," Olson said.

WOMEN
1. Find the man whose temperament clashes the least with your own.
2. Trust your husband; the wife who is suspicious usually finds what she suspects.
3. Study ways of making your husband comfortable at home.

PRESIDENT TO TOUR BEYOND RAILROAD END

Party Started on a 90-Mile Trip to Over Richardson Trail to McCarty

Fairbanks, Alaska, July 16.—Having reached the northern end of steel train transportation President Harding proposed today to go further into the interior of Alaska by automobile. President and Mrs. Harding and a portion of their party will start from here on an automobile trip of 90 miles over Richardson trail to McCarty, on the Tanana river. The ride will take five hours. It was originally planned that the Presidential party should go over the trail, 372 miles to Thutina, and there take the copper river and Northwestern rail road to the Port of Cordova, but the trip was abandoned as too strenuous much to the regret of Mrs. Harding, who has been urging it.

"L" CARS ARE TELESKOPED

Seven Injured in New York Early This Morning

New York, July 16.—Two wooden coaches of a crowded elevated train were telescoped and crashed, injuring seven passengers when it crashed into the rear of an empty subway train in the Bronx. The collision occurred opposite the Interborough parking yards where both elevated and subway trains travel the overhead structure.

30 CANDIDATES FOR LICENSES AS DENTISTS

Fargo, July 16.—Thirty candidates for dental licenses in the state of North Dakota appeared at the sessions of the state board of examination here July 10-13. The amount of business that came before the board was so great that the meetings had to be extended over a four day period, according to Dr. C. W. Fargo, secretary of the board, who was re-elected at the meeting.

Dr. H. W. Whitcomb of Grand Forks, retiring vice president, was elected president for the coming year to succeed Dr. C. H. Hibbs of Bismarck. Dr. H. C. Cooper of Aberdeen was elected vice president. Other members of the board are Dr. Hibbs, Dr. A. M. Hardaway of Minot and Dr. I. M. Wells of Harvey.

The men who took the examination for license to practice in the state were: Harold Joseph Risk, Lisbon, N. D.; William Luvorne Huffman, Walhalla; Joseph Nelson Campbell, Grand Forks; Wilfred Ezra Fisher, Cavalier; Charles Joseph O'Keefe, Grand Forks; Max Mills Moore, Lisbon; Orlando Boucher, Edmond; Paul Joseph Weir, Miller, S. D.; Glen Stanley Platt, Stanley, N. D.; Arthur Theodore Diering, Tripp, S. D.; Otto Isak, Eureka, S. D.; Frank C. Deling, Beach, N. Amateurs Cut Off By New Seven-Way Radio-Phone Cable

Avalon, Santa Catalina Island, July 16.—Making seven conversations flow where but one flowed before is the engineering achievement credited to telephone engineers, who have just finished laying what is said to be the world's first one-pair submarine telephone cable between this island off the Southern California coast and the mainland, 25 miles away.

Before the introduction of radio telephony, island dwellers here had to depend on mail for communication. With the wireless came relief of a sort for with a radio "talk bridge" linking the island telephone line with the vast network of wires covering the continent, one could carry on a conversation with any point in the states.

AFTERMATH OF BIG BALLOON RACE

Basket Had Been Cut From Gas Bag

After word was received by a passing steamer that a gas bag had been seen 25 miles out of Port Stanley, Ont., Canada, the tug-Frank H. Stanley and the seaplane Nina, owned by the Aeromarine Airways Company, started for the location.

They found the bag of the lost U. S. navy balloon A-6698, in which Lieutenants Roth and Null started as the navy entrant in the Independence balloon race on July 4. Later searches found bodies believed to be those of the missing men.

With the bag was found clothing of the balloonists, an American flag, a log book and some food. Photo shows the crew of the tug hauling the bag aboard. It is the first time a tug and a seaplane recovered a wrecked balloon. Photo was taken from the seaplane.

radio telephony making this possible. The ship which laid the cable is as interesting as the engineering achievement in which it played a part. It is the United States Army cable ship Dellwood, which came all the way from Alaska to pay out the 80 miles of heavily insulated and armored wire across the channel separating Santa Catalina Island from the mainland. The channel is only 25 miles wide, but its unusual depth required 30 miles each for the two cable lines, which traverse the ocean bed two miles apart and come together at the mainland and island terminals.

The Dellwood's Filipino cable crew is used to deep-water jobs, however. "Filipinos make the best cablemen obtainable, according to Captain Persous, in charge of the vessel's laying and repair operations.

"Our Filipinos don't know what danger is," he said, referring to the perils encountered along the Alaskan coast, where the Dellwood has been at work for the past year repairing the 20-year-old Washington-Alaska cable, operated between Seattle and Sitka by the United States Army. "When a man goes out over the overhanging bow in a boatswain's chair to cut a steel cable with a cable blowing, a heavy sea running and ice breaking against the ship, he can't be troubled with a yellow streak. Our Filipinos do that and similar stunts every day in Alaskan waters."

The Dellwood's mechanical equipment for its task included five huge tanks, capable of holding 1,700 miles of deep-sea cable wound about hollow steel cores. On the forward deck is the cable "picking up" machine, which brings up the worn-out cable on a repair job, and on the after deck is the "paying out" machine which brings the cable up out of the tanks in the hold and pays it out over the stern onto the ocean floor.

British Writer Fears For Future Of Yugoslavia

London, July 16.—Yugoslavia is perilously near dissolution, says a correspondent of the Sunday Observer. He believes its condition may have widespread influence upon the unstable architecture of European peace. If Yugoslavia is to be saved, he says, it can be done only by an immediate and extensive application of the principles of non-coercion and federalism.

After giving a history of the foundation of the new kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes in 1918, which "promised to be one of the most stable and promising components of post-war Europe," the correspondent describes the act of union signed by the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes at Zagreb in 1918, assuring the principal racial elements local autonomy and local parliaments. "It was," says he, "a constitution in reference to the cultural and political differences which would naturally exist between a nation whose whole history was interlocked with that of Turkey, and one which had been educated, however unwillingly, in the Austrian school. But it was never even tried."

The Belgrade Government, the writer adds, has abolished the local parliaments, imposed a constitution that is virtually a Serbian empire, and has repeatedly imprisoned and expelled the Croat national leader. "This policy is the work of the coalition of Radicals and Democrats, of the aged and incalculable Pavitch, a habitual Serbian prime minister now nearly eighty, and Preb povitch, a man of science and violent mind, who, believing centralization the best government for the new state is ready to go to any length except the use of force in attaining it."

The Two Balloonists

By NEA Service
INDIANAPOLIS, July 16.—Number 9 did it. That's what friends say about the fate of Lieutenants L. J. Roth (left), Lakehurst, N. J., pilot of the navy balloon A-6698, which fell into Lake Erie while in the national balloon race. Lieutenant Roth told newspaper men just before he and his aide, Lieutenant Telford B. Null (right), also of Lakehurst, entered the basket, that he did not exactly relish having his enemy number 9.

"Oh, well, maybe number 9 will bring me luck this time. Maybe I have a wonderful chance to win," Lieutenant Roth's body was found in Lake Erie July 9.

Old Glory Recovered

The seaplane Nina, which put out from Cleveland and is owned by the Aeromarine Airways Company, co-operating with the tug Frank H. Stanley, recovered the gas bag of the lost navy balloon. With it was found the flag carried by the ill-fated balloonists, Lieutenants L. J. Roth and T. B. Null.

Some clothing also was found. This photo shows Harry Bruno (center), vice president of the Aeromarine Airways, Inc., handing over the flag to R. H. Richards, assistant pilot of the Nina, after returning from the trip.

Yugoslav border. The traveler soon finds that each and every state regards itself as the one survival of civilization in a world of savage anarchy. The new states are important constitutional entities, capable of reacting seriously upon the history of Europe, are not mere figments of the creative imagination of a comic peace conference.

RECEIVER IS NOW HANDLING EQUITY PLANT

Temporary Receivership For Packing Plant Is Effective Today

Fargo, July 16.—Receivership of the Equity Co-operative Packing company went into effect today when John Martin, appointed receiver Saturday by District Judge Cole, took charge of the company's property. An order to show cause why the temporary receivership should not be made permanent is made returnable July 21.

In the complaint filed for the appointment of a receiver by Fargo stockholders of the company it is alleged the company is insolvent and that officers who were in charge were incompetent to handle its business or extricate it from its financial difficulties.

Among other things the complaint alleges that the $1,000,000 capital of the concern, $1,000,000, has been dissipated through mismanagement of its affairs and that its managing officers allowed mortgages and other liens to be foreclosed without making any effort to prevent foreclosure. Martin is the second receiver to be appointed in the affairs of the company. In January Ira J. Larson was appointed receiver but the receivership was dissolved by mutual agreement.

ONE DIES IN 'DIPPING' WAR

Jackson, Mich., July 16.—Armed with machine guns and rifles a federal force has "dug in" in Amity county where a "cattle dipping war" is in progress, according to reports reaching here.

Henry Pruck was shot and killed by officers when it was alleged he attempted to blow up a dipping vat with dynamite. Forty-eight vats have been blown up near Liberty the last few weeks.

WEALTHY SOAP MAKER DIES

Pasadena, Calif., July 16.—Harry Gamble, 75, member of the firm of Proctor and Gamble, soap manufacturers, Cincinnati, died here today.

RETURNS HOME, WISER, POORER

Minneapolis, July 16.—Edwin Olson of Larimore, N. D., who came to Minneapolis to "see the town," prepared to go home today $800 sadder and wiser.

Olson met two pleasant spoken men at his hotel, 817 Washington avenue S., he told police. They went for a walk on Park avenue. They walked for some blocks. Then, Olson said, the men began to talk about buying land at Larimore. "Have you got any money?" they asked.

"Sure," Olson said. "I've got $800."

Ten minutes later, he had only a headache. The men were gone, and so was the $800.

"Now I'm going home," Olson said.

ARE YOU HAPPILY WED? PROVE IT

This Couple Did, So Jury Judged Them Champions

TOM GROVES AND HIS WIFE, JUDGED THE HAPPIEST MARRIED COUPLE IN GREAT BRITAIN, WITH THEIR TWO CHILDREN, AND REV. HERBERT DUNNICCO, COUNSELLOR IN WIG AND GOWN, WHO ARGUED THEIR CASE.

Britain's Happiest Married Couple Tell Their Rules

MEN
1. Pick out a wife closest to your ideal of womanhood.
2. Remember that she is a human being like yourself, with the same weaknesses, feelings, and rights.
3. See that there is give and take on both sides.

By NEA Service.
London, July 16.—Here's a question for married folks to ponder: "Can you prove to a jury that you're happily married?"

The question has just been decided. A court has picked out the champion married couple of the British Isles. They took home the bacon—literally.

Honors for 1928 were awarded Tom Groves, Labor member of Parliament, and his wife. Couples from all over Great Britain took part in the contest before a quaint court in a village in Essex.

"Custom centuries old decrees that every year there shall meet at Dunmow a court which awards the Dunmow 'ditch of bacon' to the couple judged to comply with the conditions set forth in this ancient rhyme: You shall state by custom of confession That you ne'er made nuptial transgression. Nor since you were married man and wife."

By household brawls or contentious strife Or otherwise at bed or board Offended each other by deed or word, Or in a twelve-month and a day Repented not in thought any way, Or since the parish clerk said Amen Wished yourselves unmarried again; But continued true and in desire As when you joined hands in holy cure.

The jury was made up of six of the prettiest girls in the district, and six young bachelors.

Groves, who is 38, and his wife, two years younger, had to submit to a husband to be "happy," says Groves, "is to model your wife on your ideal. My ideal was Agnes in Dickens' 'David Copperfield.' Don't regard your wife as an angel, any better than you are, or any worse. And in the family give and take, don't do all the giving, yourself, and expect her to do all the taking."

"People are wrong who think common interests form the key to married happiness," says Mrs. Groves. "Wives who are suspicious of their husbands make a mistake. A wife's greatest duty is to make the home a resting place."

Mr. Gamble, a resident of Pasadena for 15 years, was a philanthropist, chiefly interested in church activities. He was a trustee of Occidental College, Los Angeles, formerly president of the board and a contributor to the college endowment fund.

Olson met two pleasant spoken men at his hotel, 817 Washington avenue S., he told police. They went for a walk on Park avenue. They walked for some blocks. Then, Olson said, the men began to talk about buying land at Larimore. "Have you got any money?" they asked.

"Sure," Olson said. "I've got $800."

Ten minutes later, he had only a headache. The men were gone, and so was the $800.

"Now I'm going home," Olson said.

WOULD STAGE FIRPO FIGHT IN S. AMERICA

Tex Rickard Makes Definite Proposition to Dempsey's Manager, Jack Kearns

New York, July 16.—Tex Rickard today made a definite proposition that the heavyweight champion, Jack Dempsey, meet Luis Firpo on Buenos Aires, as desired by Firpo. The proposition was made by Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey.

Kearns announced he would make known his decision by Wednesday.

WANTS TWO BATTLES.
New York, July 16.—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, before going into conference late today with Promoter Tex Rickard and Luis Firpo, who knocked out Jess Willard last week, hoped that he would obtain a contract matching the champion and Firpo on Labor Day and against Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, about the time of the world's series.

HEARING IS POSTPONED

Hearing in the case of Fred Masingham, charged with shooting with intent to kill Leroy Till, local machine gunner, was again postponed in Mandan today until July 23 because of inability of defense counsel, J. M. Stanley, to be present. Attorney Stanley is at Carson attending the court term.

BOYD ELECTED.
Grand Forks, July 16.—B. C. Boyd of Grand Forks was elected commander of the North Dakota department, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at the annual convention of the department today. Steven Smith of Grand Forks was elected department adjutant.

The meeting was a feature of the opening day of the North Dakota state fair.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

IN YEAR 2500
We had a dream last night, that we had come back to earth in the year 2500. Well, you'd never have known the old place.

The first thing we noticed was that there were no houses fastened to the ground. People in the year 2500 were living in enormous airships, with as many as 10 rooms inside. When the family tired of a location, it flew to another. No trouble about trespassing, for all land was owned in common by all the people (through their government) in the year 2500.

The flying machine had made it possible for the average person during lifetime to visit nearly every interesting place on earth.

Attached to the big airplane-home was a garage where we kept the small plane that carried him to and from work at a speed of 500 miles an hour. With such fast transportation the great cities, naturally, had broken up except as groups of factories, offices and shops.

Inside the airplane-home we found our cooking dinner. A scientist long since had discovered how to release the terrific energy locked up in the atom, and a pound of coal did a family's cooking and heating for months.

Through a window we saw a glass building.
"That," ma explained, "is a farm. As you know, if you recall your history, it was nearly the year 2000 before scientists learned how to cross cereals and vegetables with yeast growth and produce a crop in 24 hours."

The children and parents looked phenomenally healthy. All germs had been conquered, all disease stamped out.

A World War had been declared on rats and insects such as flies and mosquitoes. These had been exterminated finally by cross-breeding other insects that were their natural destroyers.

Radio in the year 2500 had been perfected until a perfect receiving set was as small as a watch and carried by every one, enabling people to talk to any person anywhere at any time. The intellectuals, of course, had abandoned clumsy language and were exchanging thoughts by telepathy.
At this point, the alarm clock began ringing.

FORBIDDEN FRUIT

A modern Tom Sawyer, who persisted in playing hooky, was brought to the attention of Prof. Samuel B. Sinclair, authority on incorrigible children and juvenile mental defects.

The trouble with this lad was that he had a craving for reading yellow-back novels. He had no particular aversion to school. It was merely that going to school interfered with his novel reading.

Meeting the boy, Prof. Sinclair said to him: "I forbid you to go to school tomorrow. Don't worry, I'll make it all right with the truant officer. Stay home and read your yellow-back novels all you want to. What kind do you like best? Stories of Nugget Gulch, eh? Well, I'll see that you get all you want of them. Try and read several a day."

The lad was delighted. But in three days he found his freedom unattractive. He no longer cared keenly for blood-and-thunder literature. Restrictions against it being removed, he lost interest because he no longer had any law to violate. He wanted the fruit as long as it was forbidden. When no longer forbidden, it lost its attractiveness.

You have seen the same psychology operate with grown-ups. There's an old saying about forbidden fruit tasting the sweetest.

When whisky could be bought at 90 cents a quart, the average family wouldn't have it in the home. Now that the buying of whisky for beverage purposes is illegal, and its price so high that possession of it indicates the "pecuniary honorific" or ability to pay, the same average family seems to consider it a "cute" achievement to be able to serve a highball.

As the popular song ran: "For when you get what you want, you don't want it at all."

Tracing this deeper into psychology, you realize that the average individual is a philosophical anarchist at heart, and that he hates restrictions of any sort. If you doubt this, just tack up a "fresh paint" sign and see how few people can resist touching the paint with their fingertips.

We are a law-abiding people—as long as the laws restrict others, not ourselves. Fortunately, most laws are made for the minority—chronic lawbreakers being in the minority. Most of us are decent citizens, don't need any laws. But mischievous inner self says: "Touch the paint."

If you keep all this in mind, you realize the vital handicap of the prohibition law. The drys' fight is not so much against liquor, as against forbidden fruit.

CHILDREN

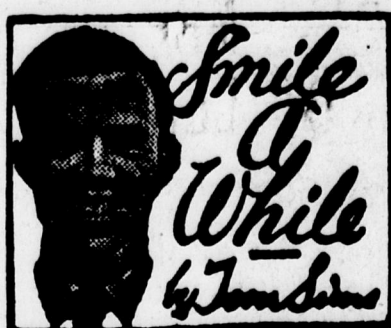

In New York City over 17,000 children were mistreated and neglected, in one year, sufficiently to be brought to the attention of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Many more thousands were not reported.

When you consider a record like this, which is a black eye on our civilization, you do not wonder that so many children mature into criminals, failures and defectives. Solution of most of our social problems is in childhood.

TRAGEDY

Is there to be no end to our wretchedness? A long string of calamitous news is climaxed by government announcement that the watermelon crop is short this year. Only 36 million early melons available, making three eters for each melon, an impossible situation.

Watermelons the other day sold in New York City for $1100 a carload. If the farmer who raised the melons knew this, he'd probably explode.

The second crop of straw lids is about ripe.

A bathing beach mosquito would starve to death in town.

Nothing is harder on a woman's complexion than her enemies.

Never let the flies eat with you. In spite of their good breeding they have no table manners.

If a golfer walks around the links for his health, any mail carrier ought to whip Dempsey.

Every now and then you hear a man standing around lying about how truthful he is.

Fortune seldom smiles at a joke.

Cussing the luck makes it mad.

There are not enough people without flippers to elect Ford.

Nice thing about the hot weather is nothing worse can come along to take its place.

Some of the bathing girl idols have feet of clay.

Camping gets one out in the open. Not paying rent does the same.

Many a wife wonders if hubby has gone fishing for speckled beauties or freckled beauties.

It takes a lot of sense to get by without knowing anything.

Summer is passing. It is estimated electric fans have blown out nine million matches already.

Women with the most clothes seem to wear the least.

Things will get better when you hear of some fellow mortgaging his auto to buy a house.

Men with light heads don't shine like those with lantern jaws.

A man can be happy without a home if he is only staying away.

It takes a marriage license to get married on and an auto license to get a date on.

As a man thinks so he is, unless somebody changes his mind.

Summer resort engagements are dangerous. They are liable to end in marriage.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

The next place the Twins came to in Rainbow Land was a funny one. It was quite as queer as any place they had seen since they entered the big rainbow door.
Nancy rubbed her eyes and Nick blinked hard.
"Oh!" chuckled Mister Sky Bow. "What's the matter?"
"It's—it's those people," said Nancy. "What are they doing that for?"
"Why, those are the Whirlies," said the little fairy guide. "They whirl around like that until they get dizzy and then they stop. When the dizziness wears off they begin all over again."

Everywhere the Whirlies were turning around and around and every once in a while one of them would stop and stagger and then fall on the ground.

Right near Nancy a Whirlie stopped whirling and began to act so dizzy that Nancy caught him.
"Oh, don't!" he shouted. "Don't stop me!"

So Nancy let go and instantly the Whirlie sat down with a thump.
"Oh, it's so lovely!" he cried. "Everything is going round and round and round. Everything looks like streaks. It's better than a merry-go-round. Ha, ha, ha! Who are you and what makes you so fat?"

You look as wide as two houses, each of you. Now you're gone. No, there you are again. And you're all streaky. My, my, my! What queer people!"

"Silly," said Mister Sky Bow. "I ain't these children who are queer, it's you. They aren't fat at all. It's your dizzy head that makes them look so."

"Why so they aren't," declared the Whirlie, rubbing his eyes. "How do you do! Welcome to Whirligig Town! Would you like to whirl around and get all dizzy. I'll show you how. It's loads of fun!"

"No, thank you," answered Nancy politely. "I'm not allowed. Besides it gives me a headache."

"Then I'll have to whirl by myself," said the Whirlie, and he started all over again.

THE BARRIER

CABLE FROM ALICE HAMILTON TO HER FATHER, JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON.

Arrived safely. Betty's parents met me. Love, ALICE

Letter from Leslie Prescott to Leslie Prescott, in Care of Secret Drawer.

Something happened to me last night that was quite interesting. I gave my first dinner to one of Jack's friends from the office, who brought his wife to dine with us.

In some peculiar way the conversation drifted round to the marriage problem. It always seems to do this when two or three married couples get together.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellington are rather strange. I would judge that Harry Ellington had been a rounder before marriage and had not gotten over it yet.

His wife, whom he called "Ruth," was, on the other hand, a delicate, fragile rather sullen blond.

During the conversation I found out that although Harry and Jack were of distinctly different dispositions and temperaments, brought up in different environments and in very different circumstances, they ion that the same old rooted opinion that when a woman was good she was very good indeed and when she was bad she was horrid.

It seems strange to me that even since the war, men still hold such erroneous ideas of women. They yet do not realize that we are the same as they are, just a queer little jumble of virtues and vices.

They seem to want us always strong to others but always weak to themselves. If they only knew it, women are petty at times and unselfish at others. They can be more tender than masculine imagination can conceive and quite as cruel as even Rudyard Kipling declares they are.

Every man puts his wife on a pedestal and is heartbroken if, through no fault of hers, she tumbles off it. A place on a pedestal is very difficult to maintain and I am sure every woman grows tired and wobbly up there, for reverence is a cold kind of worship.

I know that I would rather walk away with a man who would call me a ridiculous creature in one breath and kiss me while he laughed at my antics in another breath.

It was rather interesting to watch Ruth Ellington's face while we were talking for I could see that her husband had made her an angel too fair and frail for the cold winds of the world to blow upon. Then when he had found out that that was not the kind of a companion he wanted, he was hieing himself to flowery fields and pastures new leaving poor Ruth very frigid and very miserable on her little pedestal with no worshiper at all to bear her company.

I wonder, gay little Marquise, if you found out what a complex thing life is. We want and want and want for things and when some wonderful day they come to us, we don't want them any more; we want something entirely different.

School Board Accepts Plans

General plans for the new high school building presented by Gilbert R. Horton, Jamestown architect, were approved by the Mandan board of education at a meeting Friday. While some minor changes will be made in them, bids will be called for as soon as the architect can develop the specification data.

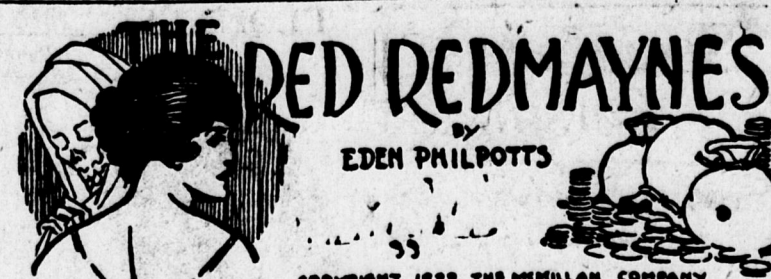

The new building will be 65 feet wide and 138 feet long. It will be erected directly in front of the present central school building and will serve as the chief unit of a block of buildings and wings to be erected in years to come as finances of the school district warrant. It will have no basement but will be heated from the central school plant.

EDEN PHILPOTTS

RELISHED BY NEA SERVICE INC., ARTIST, MET. NEWS, 315.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Robert Redmayne, roaming at large, is suspected of the murder of Michael Pendean, husband to Robert's niece, Jenny, Mark Brendon, criminal investigator, has charge of the case.

Jenny goes to live with her uncle, Bendigo Redmayne. Robert appears in the neighborhood and sends word to Bendigo to come alone to his hiding place. Giuseppe Dotia, who works for Bendigo, takes his master to the meeting place. When Doria returns to the nearby cave he finds that both men have disappeared.

Jenny marries Doria and they go to live in Italy, where Jenny's uncle, Albert, Redmayne, lives. Peter Ganns, famous American detective, assists Brendon in the investigations. Robert meets Brendon and shoots at him. Ganns suspects Doria and his wife of treachery.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
"I cannot stop here," he said when she had gone. "This is no life for a man. Jenny will probably remain with her uncle. She is fed up, as you say, with me. I am very unfortunate, Marco, for I have not in the least deserved to lose her affection."

He departed and Brendon joined Albert Redmayne to find the old man had grown uneasy and fearful. "I am not happy, Brendon," he said. "There is coming into my mind a cloud—a premonition that very dreadful disasters are going to happen to those I love. When does Ganns return?"

"Soon after dark, Mr. Redmayne. Perhaps about nine o'clock we may expect him. Be patient a little longer."

"It has not happened to me to feel as I do today," answered the book lover. "A sense of ill darkness my mind—a suspicion of finality, and Jenny shares it. Something is amiss. She has a presentiment that it is so."

Jenny presently joined them and all entered the dining room together, where tea was served.

They sat long and the shadows were lengthening before the old man returned to his apartments. Then Giuseppe lit one of his Tuscan cigars, took his hat and left the house.

"At last!" whispered Jenny, her face lighting in relief. "He will be gone for a good two hours now and we can talk."

"Not here, then," Mark answered. "Let us go into the garden. Then I can see when the man comes back."

Presently Ernesto came and turned on an electric bulb that hung over the scrolled iron work of the outer gate. Then they were alone again, and the woman threw off all shadow of reserve and restraint.

"Thank God you can listen at last," she said, then poured out a flood of entreaties. He was swept from every mental hold, drowned in the torrent of her petitions, baffled and bewildered at one moment, filled with joy in the next.

For an hour she spoke and detailed all she had been called upon to endure.

Brendon listened with a rapture that was almost incredulous; for she loved him at last and desired nothing better than to come to him and forget the double tragedy that had ruined her young life.

She was in his arms now and he sought to soothe her, sustain her and bring her mind to regard a future where peace, happiness and content might still be hers.

Another hour passed, the fireflies danced over their heads; sweet scents stole through the garden; lights twinkled from the house; on the lake in the silence that now fell between them they heard the gentle thud of a steamer's propeller. Still Doria did not return and as a church clock struck the hour Jenny rose.

She left him to seek Assunta; and he, hearing the steamer and guessing that Peter was at hand, hastened to the house. Silence seemed to fill it, and as he lifted his voice and called to Albert Redmayne, the noise on the water ceased. No answer reached Mark, and from the library he proceeded to the adjoining bedroom. It was empty and he hastened out upon the veranda above the lake. But still the book lover did not appear. A long, black vessel with all lights out had anchored a hundred yards from the Villa Pianezzo, and now a boat put off from the craft of the lake police and paddled to the steps below Brendon.

Peter, with four men, quickly landed and Brendon spoke. He could give no details, however, and Jenny furnished them. While she and Mark sat in the garden, guarding the front door and front gate, behind them to the house there had come a message by boat for Mr. Redmayne.

Assunta told them how an Italian had reached the steps in a skiff from Bellagio; how he had called for her and broken the evil news that Signor Poggi was fallen dangerously ill; and how he sent entreaties to his friends to see him without delay.

Assunta declared that her master had been gone for an hour, if not longer.

The group formed under Peter's command and he issued his directions swiftly. He cast one look at Mark which the detective never forgot; but none saw it save Brendon himself. Then he spoke.

"Row this boat back to the steamer, Brendon," he said, "and tell them to take you across to Poggi as quick as may be. If Redmayne is there, leave him there and return. But he's not there; he's at the bottom of the lake. Go!"

Then Peter turned to the rest and bade them all, with Jenny, accompany him to the dwelling room. Supper had been laid here but the apartment was empty.

"What has happened," explained Peter, "is this: Doria has used the only certain means of getting Albert Redmayne out of this house, and his wife has doubtless aided him to the best of her power by arresting the attention of my colleague who I left in charge. How she did it I can easily guess."

Jenny's horrified eyes flamed at him and her face grew rosy.

"How little you know!" she cried. "This is cruel, infamous! Have I not suffered enough?"

"If I am from I'll be the first to own it, ma'am," he answered. "But I am not wrong. What has happened means that your husband will be back to supper. That's but ten minutes to wait. Assunta, return to the kitchen. Ernesto, hide in the garden and lock the iron gate as soon as Doria has passed through it."

Silence fell and in five minutes came the clink of the iron gate and the footfall of a man without. Doria was singing his canzonet. He came straight into the room, stared about him at the assembled men, then fixed his eyes upon his wife.

"What is this?" he cried in amazement.

"Game's up and you've lost," answered Ganns. "You're a great crook! And your own vanity is all that's beat you!" He turned quickly to the chief of police, who showed a warrant and spoke English.

"Michael Pendean," he said, "you are arrested for the murder of Robert Redmayne and Bendigo Redmayne."

"And add 'Albert Redmayne,'" growled Ganns. He leaped aside with amazing agility as he spoke, for the culprit had seized the weapon nearest his hand and hurled a heavy salt-cellar from the table at Peter's head. The mass of glass crashed in to an old Italian mirror behind Ganns and at the moment when all eyes instinctively followed the sound, Jenny's husband dashed for the door. Like lightning he turned and was over the threshold before a hand could be lifted to stop him; but one in the room had watched and now he raised his revolver. This young officer—destined for future fame—had never taken his eyes off Doria and now he fired. He was quick but another had been quicker, had seen his purpose and anticipated his action. The bullet meant for Michael Pendean struck down his wife, for Jenny had leaped into the doorway and stopped it.

She fell without a sound, whereupon the fugitive turned instantly, abandoned his flight, ran to her, knelt and lifted her to his breast.

He was harmless now, but he embraced a dead woman and the blood from her mouth, as he kissed her, covered his lips. He made no further fight, knowing that she was dead, carried her to a couch, laid her gently down, then turned and stretched his arms for the hand-cuffs.

A moment later Mark Brendon entered from the house.

"Poggi sent no message and Albert Redmayne has not been seen at Bellagio," he said.

CHAPTER XVII
The Methods of Peter Ganns
Two men traveled together in the train de luxe from Milan to Calz. Ganns wore a black band upon the sleeve of his left arm; his companion, an Italian, wore a black band upon his face. It seemed that Brendon had increased in age; his countenance looked haggard; his very voice was older.

Peter tried to distract the younger man, who appeared to listen, though his mind was far away and his thoughts brooding upon a grave.

After a pause and a long silence, while the train sped through the "Gnness of the Simplon tunnel, Peter retraced the steps by which he had been enabled to solve the riddle of the Redmaynes.

"I went first to Penzance and devoted several days to learning all possible particulars of the Pendean family. On examining Michael Pendean's ancestry, as a preliminary to finding out everything remembered of Pendean himself, I at once made a highly important discovery. Joseph Pendean, Michael's father, was often in Italy. He was a black business for the firm, and he married an Italian woman. She lived with her husband at Penzance and bore him one son, and a daughter who died in infancy. The lady seems to have given cause for a certain amount of scandal, for her Latin temperament and lively ways did not commend themselves to the rather austere and religious circle in which her husband and his relations moved. Michael was devoted to his mother and accompanied her frequently to Italy. On one of these occasions, when a boy of seventeen or eighteen, he met with an accident to his head; but I could glean no particulars of its nature.

"When at last Mrs. Pendean died in Italy, her husband attended the funeral at Naples and returned to England immediately afterward with his son. The boy was subsequently apprenticed to a dentist, having expressed a wish to follow that profession."

Yeomen Enjoy Festive Picnic

Favored by the most perfect weather the Yeomen held their annual picnic and stunt day frolic at Wildwood yesterday through the courtesy of the owners of that resort.

About fifty members assembled for the noonday picnic lunch and the festive "skeeter" having been successfully routed, the several groups enjoyed rare picnic refreshments.

Following the lunch hour sports, in number, were staged. The first was Hunting the Red Hen for the entire party and Mrs. J. B. Cook having won the contest was designated "Chief Scout." A nutcracker was the prize.

The company was then divided into groups and the remainder of the stunts were carried out in progress from one to the other.

The flag contest was won by Fleetfoot Miss Elsie Bell who received a silk flag for her efforts. The bell ringing was won by David Cook who was "knighted" Chief Ignatius and presented with a ring bell.

Hunting the Roebuck gave plenty of exercise and excitement and was won by David Cook. He thereupon became "Mighty Hunter" and captured the scalp lock.

The archery contest was won by Mrs. Paul Cook who received the title of sharp shooter and was presented with the Bow and Arrows with which she proved her marksmanship.

Each group finished at the fish and where they all drew wondrous prizes with a line and hook.

A lounging hour was followed by another "big feed" which closed the most perfect picnic day that the local Yeomen lodge ever enjoyed.

FLOUNCES AND BUSTLES WILL PREVAIL WHEN COLDER WEATHER SETS IN THESE DESIGNS MAY NOT BE TYPICAL, BUT IT SHOWS HOW FAR MANUFACTURERS EXPECT TO GO THIS FALL.

BY MARIAN HALE
NEA Service Writer

New York, July 16.—While you are wrestling with the problem of keeping cool in the summer, manufacturers of women's clothing are figuring out how to keep you warm next winter.

That is, of course, how to keep you warm and at the same time smart. When your interest in clothes is at its lowest ebb, these style arbiters are speculating on how far they may go with the bustle, how many flounces women really will stand, and how loyal adherents of the straight chemise frock will prove to be.

So, in your most comfortable moments, you might ponder a little on what is before you. The two distinctly new features of this season, flounces and bustles, are going to be the leading ones for fall. And as for pleating—it's vogue has apparently just begun.

Huge bustle bows will be featured both on the sides and in the back, on the new frocks, but the back is the more favored location.

Circular flounces edge the long, tight sleeves, or begin at the waistline and work their sinuous trail round and round the skirt in spiral effect.

More popular than the pleated skirts is the one with a pleated apron in back or front, or on both sides. Elbow sleeves, seldom seen, usually have a wide pleated ruffle which reaches to the wrist.

Of materials, velvet promises to be the most popular, and it comes in printed and brocaded patterns as well as plain, in all the known colors. Double-faced satin, crepes, of heavy quality, are also expected to be much sought after. Duveltyne and the very soft finished wools come in exceptionally lovely colors this fall.

Costs keep to a very slender outline, but are by no means plain. Circular flounces, wrap-around effects and shawl draperies all mark the new models and manage to look quite different from the one you bought last winter.

Suits have returned to favor and we have the plain tailored model and the fancy one to choose from depending upon your figure and your taste. Some of the fanciest ones are of velvet and show a decided waistline, with a flaring peplum.

A word in regard to figures: Corset manufacturers say corsets are coming back, but the flappers declare they will never wear them. So there you are!

AT THE MOVIES

CAPITOL

These who have witnessed the special William Fox production of "Monte Cristo," based on Dumas' undying novel, have declared it without hesitation to be a splendid photographic masterpiece, a cast of surprising excellence, charming photography, same subtleties and costumes which serve to stimulate the fancy, are some of the contributing factors.

It seems that all of the Dumasque characters have but stepped from the pages of this well remembered romance so that the very atmosphere of the book has been caught magically by the camera. Added to that one can discern the same genius displayed by Director Emmett J. Flynn for symbolism and exposition discovered in hundreds of details in the William Fox masterpiece, "Monte Cristo," when it comes to the Capitol tonight.

Stark County Gives Pensions

Dickinson, N. D., July 16.—Fourteen Stark county mothers and 53 children up to the age of 16 years are now receiving mothers' pension benefit under the new law effective July 1. All pension allotments heretofore given out were automatically cancelled on June 30 and new applications were required. Hearings to consider applications were held with the board of county commissioners at the office of Judge Fred Maser July 5, for mothers residing in Dickinson and on the day following for those living outside the city.

Under the new laws and the schedules compiled by the county court monthly allowances to mothers range from $15 to $50. The latter amount which is the highest, was awarded to 15 mothers with six children ranging in age from six to twelve years. In granting these allowances the court is expected to consider the earning capacity of the mother, of the children above a certain age, the income of the family and the ability of relatives to assist.

CALL MEETING OF LEAGUERS

Will Gather at Valley City to Discuss Future

Fargo, July 16.—Regardless of any action taken by the state executive committee of the Nonpartisan League, as to refusing the request for a state convention, the convention announced for Valley City, Thursday, July 19, will be held and a large attendance is now assured, backers of the movement in Fargo announced yesterday. The meeting will be held in the city hall.

State Senator John L. Micklethun of Wimbledon, State Senator C. J. Olson of Valley City and C. P. Peterson of Grand Forks, issued a formal invitation to all who are dissatisfied with present conditions within the Nonpartisan League in North Dakota to attend the conference called in Valley City for Thursday, July 19. This letter, it was said yesterday, was being sent to leading Leaguers in all parts of the state.

Signed Statement

"Fargo, N. D., July 14, 1923.

"Dear Fellow Leaguer: We take this method of making a joint invitation to you to attend the conference called for Valley City on Thursday, July 19, and to urge you, if possible to attend or send some one from your county.

"Conditions are such within our organization that if we are to preserve it for future usefulness we must now take steps to prevent its outright sale or destruction. The great bulk of our members are discontented and dissatisfied with conditions and no effort is being put forth by those in charge and who should be active, to do anything to appease them.

"It seems to us that a meeting such as is called will afford an opportunity much needed to discuss and report the conditions in our sections and arrive at some form of organized effort that will restore confidence in the organization and give some assurance that the interests of the members are being taken care of.

"The State Executive Committee has declined and refused to call a state convention and persists in shutting its eyes to the deterioration that must result from the policy of neglect and indifference that is being pursued. No man who is a real Leaguer can rest quiet under that, and in defense of the principles for which we have so long struggled, some concerted action must be taken and that soon.

"Come to the meeting. Bring or send any real Leaguer who is awake to the situation and is one of those who believe that it shall be attempted in our organization or if it shall be in that of our opponents. Yours for the preservation of the Nonpartisan Program: John L. Micklethun, C. J. Olson, C. P. Peterson.

THRESH DURUM WHEAT EARLY ADVISE GIVEN

Fargo, N. D., July 16.—Monard D1 wheat should be harvested and threshed early in order to insure the production of high-class amber durum wheat, according to H. L. Bolley of the North Dakota Agricultural college, state pure seed commissioner.

"Monard wheat is extremely susceptible to damage from weathering both previous to and following harvesting," declares Mr. Bolley. "As a good premium exists for amber durum wheat over the price of ordinary durum, the grain producer cannot afford to take a chance of slight loss from shriveling in order to be sure of getting wheat that will make the amber grade.

"In our trials here at the Experiment station, we have found that Monard should be cut as soon as the grains are matured. Do not wait for the neck of the heads and the chaff to become white or straw-colored. This wheat should be well-shocked and threshed as early as possible. Early cutting is more important than early threshing in order to keep the production of off-color kernels at a minimum."

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

IN YEAR 2500.
We had a dream last night, that we had come back to earth in the year 2500. Well, you'd never have known the old place.

The first thing we noticed was that there were no houses fastened to the ground. People in the year 2500 were living in enormous airships, with as many as 10 rooms inside. When the family tired of a location, it flew to another. No trouble about trespassing, for all land was owned in common by all the people (through their government) in the year 2500.

The flying machine had made it possible for the average person during lifetime to visit nearly every interesting place on earth.

Attached to the big airplane-home was a garage where we kept the small plane that carried him to and from work at a speed of 500 miles an hour. With such fast transportation the great cities, naturally, had broken up except as groups of factories, offices and shops.

Inside the airplane-home we found ma cooking dinner. A scientist long since had discovered how to release the terrific energy locked up in the atom, and a pound of coal did a family's cooking and heating for months.

Through a window we saw a glass building.
"That," ma explained, "is a farm. As you know, if you recall your history, it was nearly the year 2000 before scientists learned how to cross cereals and vegetables with yeast growth and produce a crop in 24 hours."

The children and parents looked phenomenally healthy. All germs had been conquered, all disease stamped out.

A World War had been declared on rats and insects such as flies and mosquitoes. These had been exterminated finally by cross-breeding other insects that were their natural destroyers.

Radio in the year 2500 had been perfected until a perfect receiving set was as small as a watch and carried by every one, enabling people to talk to any person anywhere at any time. The intellectuals, of course, had abandoned clumsy language and were exchanging thoughts by telepathy.

At this point, the alarm clock began ringing.

FORBIDDEN FRUIT
A modern Tom Sawyer, who persisted in playing hooky, was brought to the attention of Prof. Samuel B. Sinclair, authority on incorrigible children and juvenile mental defects.

The trouble with this lad was that he had a craving for reading yellow-back novels. He had no particular aversion to school. It was merely that going to school interfered with his novel reading.

Meeting the boy, Prof. Sinclair said to him: "I forbid you to go to school tomorrow. Don't worry, I'll make it all right with the truant officer. Stay home and read your yellow-back novels all you want to. What kind of you like best? Stories of Nugget Gulch, eh? Well, I'll see that you get all you want of them. Try and read several a day."

The lad was delighted. But in three days he found his freedom unattractive. He no longer cared keenly for blood-and-thunder literature. Restrictions against it being removed, he lost interest because he no longer had any law to violate. He wanted the fruit as long as it was forbidden. When no longer forbidden, it lost its attractiveness.

You have seen the same psychology operate with grown-ups. There's an old saying about forbidden fruit tasting the sweetest.

When whisky could be bought at 90 cents a quart, the average family wouldn't have it in the home. Now that the buying of whisky for beverage purposes is illegal, and its price so high that possession of it indicates the "pecuniary honorific" of ability to pay, the same average family seems to consider it a "cute" achievement to be able to serve a highball.

As the popular song ran: "For when you get what you want, you don't want it at all."

Tracing this deeper into psychology, you realize that the average individual is a philosophical anarchist at heart, and that he hates restrictions of any sort. If you doubt this, just tack up a "fresh paint" sign and see how few people can resist touching the paint with their fingertips.

We are a law-abiding people—as long as the laws restrict others, not ourselves. Fortunately, most laws are made for the minority—chronic lawbreakers being in the minority. Most of us are decent citizens, don't need any laws. But mischievous inner self says: "Touch the paint."

If you keep all this in mind, you realize the vital handicap of the prohibition law. The dry's fight is not so much against liquor, as against forbidden fruit.

CHILDREN

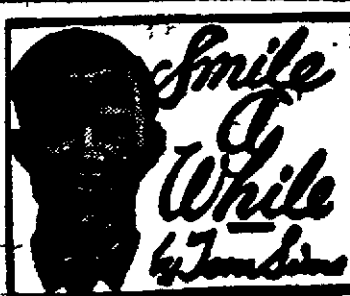

In New York City over 17,000 children were mistreated and neglected, in one year, sufficiently to be brought to the attention of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Many more thousands were not reported.

When you consider a record like this, which is a black eye on our civilization, you do not wonder that so many children mature into criminals, failures and defectives. Solution of most of our social problems is in childhood.

TRAGEDY

Is there to be no end to our wretchedness? A long string of calamitous news is climaxed by government announcement that the watermelon crop is short this year. Only 36 million early melons available, making three eters for each melon, an impossible situation.

Watermelons the other day sold in New York City for $1100 a carload. If the farmer who raised the melons knew this, he'd probably explode.

The second crop of straw lids is about ripe.

A bathing beach mosquito would starve to death in town.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

The next place the Twins came to in Rainbow Land was a funny one. It was quite as queer as any place they had seen since they entered the big rain-bow door.

Nancy rubbed her eyes and Nick blinked hard.

"Oh!" chuckled Mister Sky Bow. "What's the matter?"

"It's—it's those people," said Nancy. "What are they doing that for?"

"Why, those are the Whirlips," said the little fairy guide. "They whirl around like that until they get dizzy and then they stop. When the dizziness wears off they begin all over again."

Everywhere the Whirlips were turning around and around and every once in a while one of them would stop and stagger and then fall on the ground.

Right near Nancy a Whirlip stopped whirling and began to act so dizzy that Nancy caught him.

"Oh, don't!" he shouted. "Don't stop me!"

So Nancy let go and instantly the Whirlip sat down with a thump.

"Oh, it's so lovely!" he cried. "Everything is going 'round and 'round and 'round. Everything looks like streaks. It's better than a merry-go-round. Ha, ha, ha! Who are you and what makes you so fat?"

You look as wide as two houses, each of you. Now you're gone. No, tarry you are again. And you're all streaky. My, my, my! What queer people!"

"Silly," said Mister Sky Bow. "It isn't these children who are queer, it's you. They aren't fat at all. It's your dizzy head that makes them look so."

"Why so they aren't," declared the Whirlip, rubbing his eyes. "How do you do? Welcome to Whirling Town! Would you like to whirl around and get all dizzy. I'll show you how. It's loads of fun!"

"No, thank you," answered Nancy politely. "I'm not allowed. Besides it gives me a headache."

"Then I'll have to whirl by myself," said the Whirlip, and he started all over again.

THE BARRIER

CABLE FROM ALICE HAMILTON TO HER FATHER, JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON.

Arrived safely. Betty's parents met me. Love, ALICE.

Letter From Leslie Prescott to Leslie Prescott, in Care of Secret Drawer.

Something happened to me last night that was quite interesting. I gave my first dinner to one of Jack's friends from the office, who brought his wife to dine with us.

In some peculiar way the conversation drifted round to the marriage problem. It always seems to do this when two or three married couples get together.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellington are rather strange. I would judge that Harry Ellington had been a rounder before marriage and had not gotten over it yet.

His wife, whom he called "Ruth," was, on the other hand, a delicate, fragile rather sullen-blond.

During the conversation I found out that although Harry and Jack were of distinctly different dispositions and temperaments, brought up in very different circumstances, they found that the same old rooted opinion that when a woman was good she was very good indeed and when she was bad she was horrid.

It seems strange to me that even since the war, men still hold such erroneous ideas of women. They yet do not realize that we are the same as they are, just a queer little jumble of virtues and vices.

They seem to want us always strong to others but always weak to themselves. If they only knew it, women are petty at times and understanding at others. They can be more tender than masculine imagination can conceive and quite as cruel as even Lady Macbeth declares they are.

Every man puts his wife on a pedestal and is heartbroken if, through no fault of hers, she tumbles off it. A place on a pedestal is very difficult to maintain and I am sure every woman grows tired and wobbly up there, for reverence is a cold kind of worship.

I know that I would rather walk away with a man who would call me a ridiculous creature in one breath and kiss me while he laughed at my foolishness in the next.

It was rather interesting to watch Ruth Ellington's face while we were talking for I could see that her husband had made her an angel too fair and frail for the cold winds of the world to blow upon. Then when he had found out that that was not the kind of a companion he wanted, he was hinging himself to flowery fields and pastures new leaving poor Ruth very frigid and very miserable on her little pedestal with no worshiper at all to bear her company.

I wonder, gay little Marquise, if you found out what a complex thing life is. We want and want and want for things and when some wonderful day they come to us, we don't want them any more; we want something entirely different.

School Board Accepts Plans

General plans for the new high school building presented by Gilbert R. Horton, Jamestown architect, were approved by the Mandan board of education at a meeting Friday. While some minor changes will be made in them, bids will be called for as soon as the architect can develop the specification data.

The new building will be 65 feet wide and 138 feet long. It will be erected directly in front of the present central school building and will cut central school building and will cut out upon the grounds above the lake. But still the book lover did not appear. A long, black vessel with all lights out had anchored a hundred yards from the Villa Pianezzo, and now a boat put off from the craft of the lake police and paddled to the steps below Brendon.

REDMAYNES

EDEN PHILPOTTS

Copyright 1922, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Robert Redmayne, roaming at large, is suspected of the murder of Michael Pendean, husband to Robert's niece, Jenny. Mark Brendon, criminal investigator, has charge of the case.

Jenny goes to live with her uncle, Brendon. Brendon, who appears in the neighborhood and sends word to Brendon to come along to his hiding place. Giuseppe Doria, who works for Brendon, takes his master to the meeting place. When Doria returns to the nearby cave he finds that both men have disappeared.

Jenny marries Doria and they go to live in Italy, where Jenny's uncle, Albert Redmayne, lives. Peter Gann, famous American detective, assists Brendon in the investigation. Brendon meets Brendon and shoots at him. Gann suspects Doria and his wife of treachery.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
"I cannot stop here," he said when she had gone. "This is no life for a man. Jenny will probably remain with her uncle. She is fed up, as is my eyes upon his wife. "What is this?" he cried in amazement.

"Gamo's up and you've lost," answered Gann. "You're a great crook! And your own vanity is all that's beat you!" He turned quickly to the chief of police, who showed a warrant and spoke English.

"Michael Pendean," he said, "you are arrested for the murder of Robert Redmayne and Brendon Redmayne."

"And add 'Albert Redmayne,'" growled Gann. He leaped aside with amazing agility as he spoke, for the culprit had seized the weapon nearest his hand and hurled a heavy salt-cellar from the table at Peter's head. The mass of glass crashed into an old Italian mirror behind Gann and at the moment when all eyes instinctively followed the sound, Jenny's husband dashed for the door. Like lightning he turned and was over the headboard before hand could be lifted to stop him; but one in the room had watched and now he raised his revolver. This young officer—destined for future fame—had never taken his eyes off Doria and now he fired. He was quick but another had been quicker, had seen his purpose and anticipated his action. The bullet meant for Doria struck down his wife, for Jenny had leaped into the doorway and stopped it.

She fell without a sound, whereupon the fugitive turned instantly, abandoned his flight, ran to her, knelt and lifted her to his breast. He kissed her lips, and she kissed his.

A moment later Mark Brendon entered from the house.

"Poggi sent no message and Albert Redmayne has not been seen at Bellagio," he said.

CHAPTER XVII
The Methods of Peter Gann

Two men traveled together in the train de luxe from Milan to Calais. Gann wore a black band upon the sleeve of his left arm; his companion carried the marks of mourning in his face. It seemed that Brendon had increased in age; his countenance looked haggard; his very voice was older.

Peter tried to distract the younger man, who appeared to listen, though his mind was far away and his thoughts brooding upon a grave.

After a pause and a long silence, while the train sped through the darkness of the Simplon tunnel, Peter retraced the steps by which he had been enabled to solve the riddle of the Redmaynes.

"I went first to Ponzance and devoted several days to learning all possible particulars of the Pendean family. On examining Michael Penreached Mark, and from the library I proceeded to the adjoining bedroom. It was empty and he had been out upon the veranda above the lake. But still the book lover did not appear. A long, black vessel with all lights out had anchored a hundred yards from the Villa Pianezzo, and now a boat put off from the craft of the lake police and paddled to the steps below Brendon.

Peter, with four men, quickly landed and Brendon spoke. He could give no details, however, and Jenny furnished them. While she and Mark sat in the garden, guarding the front door and front gate, behind them to the house there had come a message from Mr. Redmayne.

Assunta told them how an Italian had reached the steps in a shirt from Bellagio; how he had called her and broken the evil news that Signor Poggi was fallen dangerously ill; and how he sent entreaties to his friends to see him without delay.

Assunta declared that her master had been gone for an hour, if not longer.

The group formed under Peter's command and he issued his directions swiftly. He cast one look at Mark which the detective never forgot; but none saw it save Brendon himself. Then he spoke.

"Row this boat back to the steamer, Brendon," he said, "and tell them to take you across to Poggi as soon as may be. If Redmayne is there, leave him there and return. But he's not there; he's at the bottom of the lake. Go!"

Then Peter turned to the rest and bade them all, with Jenny, accompany him to the dwelling room. Supper had been laid here but the apartment was empty.

"What has happened," explained Peter, "this Doria has used the only certain means of getting Albert Redmayne out of this house, and his wife has doubtless aided him to the best of her power by arresting the attention of my colleague whose I left in charge. How she did it I can easily guess."

Jenny's horrified eyes flamed at him and her face grew rosy.

"How little you know!" she cried. "This is cruel, infamous! Have I not suffered enough?"

If I am wrong I'll be the first to own it, ma'am," he answered. "But I am not wrong. What has happened means that your husband will be back to supper. That's but ten minutes to wait. Assunta, return to the kitchen. Ernest, ride in the garden and lock the iron gate as soon as Doria has passed through it."

Silence fell and in five minutes came the clink of the iron gate and the football of a man without Doria was singing his canzonet. He came straight into the room, stared about him at the assembled men, then fixed his eyes upon his wife.

"What is this?" he cried in amazement.

"Gamo's up and you've lost," answered Gann. "You're a great crook! And your own vanity is all that's beat you!" He turned quickly to the chief of police, who showed a warrant and spoke English.

"Michael Pendean," he said, "you are arrested for the murder of Robert Redmayne and Brendon Redmayne."

He leaped aside with amazing agility as he spoke, for the culprit had seized the weapon nearest his hand and hurled a heavy salt-cellar from the table at Peter's head. CAPITALS AND LOCALS DIVIDE PAIR OF GAMES

Bismarck Takes 7 to 6 Victory Saturday in Wild Finish; Shut-out Sunday

FANS SEE MUCH ACTION

The Capitals and Jimkotans divided honors Saturday and Sunday, Bismarck taking the Saturday evening game by a score of 7 to 6, and Jamestown winning Sunday afternoon by a score of 6 to 0.

Bismarck, known as the tough luck team of the league, struck back luck again Saturday, which affected Sunday's game. Shortstop Nord was badly spiked in the hand by Tommy Meier of Jamestown and was unable to play in Sunday's game. The injury made a shift necessary which affected the score Sunday. Venemon, star pitcher of the North Dakota League last year while with the champion Mitchell team with Dougan catching, was pitted against young Throckmorton Sunday. It was a pitcher's duel for five innings and had not much play given Jamestown runs it would have been a close one. Throckmorton allowed but three hits until the ninth. In the ninth with two out Williams hit a fly into right. Johnny Reider would have captured it easily but for his bad legs, and three more hits after that brought the score to six for the visitors.

Manager Tom Shanley's quick wit and knowledge of the game saved the contest for Bismarck Saturday evening, and in the ninth inning yesterday he prolonged the time of Bismarck at bat by the same avenue. In the ninth inning Sunday, Reider hit safely and Joe Day relieved him as a runner. Immediately he was caught off first and the umpire nodded out. However, time had been called for the change of runners and play had not been started again. Shanley made his protest, and the Jamestown club was called back from the dug-out to finish the inning.

Saturday's contest was a wild one. Jamestown led 7 to 0 in the seventh inning. Prodenski had not allowed Bismarck a hit to that time. He blew up in the seventh, became wild and Bismarck began to hit. They made two runs in the seventh and five in the eighth. Al Bernier scored two with a terrific three-bagger to the rightfield fence and scored when Catcher Clark missed the throw home.

In the ninth inning Shanley batted the first ball, playing first, ran in for it, and first was uncovered. "Buck" Taylor threw to first but the throw was high and the ball went past. Chenoweth scored. Shanley protested and got the umpire to go to the dugout to read the written ground rules regarding an overthrow on first base, allowing one base on it. Chenoweth was sent back. Wenz smashed one to Nord. Meier, running from second to third, crashed into Nord and came down with his spike on Nord's hand. Again Shanley protested that it was interference and the runner shouldn't score, and Chenoweth was sent back to third the second time. Wingfield was passed, filling the bases. Schanlaub hit a terrific line drive to left which looked good to break up the game. But Al Bernier made a wonderful catch at his knees and doubled Wenz at second.

The teams do not play today, Bismarck going to Valley City to play Tuesday.

FIRST PICTURES OF FIRPO'S VICTORY OVER JESS WILLARD

Just before the knockout! An unusual picture, taken at night, shows the crouching attack of Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavy weight, landing on Jess Willard just before he put over the right to the jaw that knocked out the American in the eighth round. A record crowd, in Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City, N. J., saw Firpo win and pave the way for a fight with Jack Dempsey for the world's championship.

This extraordinary photograph taken under the difficult conditions of night, shows Jess Willard, former heavyweight champion of the world, taking the count of ten at the hands of Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine giant, in the eighth round of a battle staged at Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City, N. J. One hundred thousand people saw Firpo knock out Willard with a terrific right to the jaw Thursday night, July 12. The picture shows Willard on one knee as Referee Harry Lewis is counted him out.

Golf Gaining On The Slope

Dickinson, N. D., July 16.—Newly organized golf clubs on the Slope are looking toward the Dickinson Town and Country club to sponsor a Slope tournament some time during the late summer. Golf fans in the smaller cities and towns have been especially active this year. As a result, hole courses have been laid out at New England, Hettinger, Marquette, New Leipzig and McLaughlin and strong clubs have been organized in each of these towns. Half a dozen other communities have become afflicted with "golitis" and are planning courses at the present time. According to reports from these towns players are virtually living on the links in order to become proficient.

S-i-s-t-e-r Spells "Eyes" To Chicago Youth

BY GEORGE BRITT.

NEA Service Writer.

Chicago, July 16.—A sister's eye-view of a blind prodigy reveals an unmistakable pride tinged strongly with desire to accept the facts as they are without sentimentalism.

She gathers that attitude in talking to Carol Geissler, who for more than 10 years has been the playmate and sturdy helper of her brother, Herbert Geissler.

Herbert is 18 and was graduated from John Marshall High School this month as president of his class and first honor student. Last year he was a member of the debating team which won the city championship and this year of a team which defeated a Buffalo (N. Y.) team.

— Accident Did It.

There's no doubt about Herbert's mind being quicker and better informed than most boys," says the sister. "Why, you know, he even dances."

And then the desire not to boast crept in and she adds:

"But he doesn't step out on the floor very much. He wanted to go to the junior prom this year. I had to go out and have my shoes shined afterward. But he'll make that, too, in time. He gets what he goes after."

Herbert has been blind since an accident when he was about 8 years old. He learned to braille under the instruction of John B. Curtis, superintendent of instruction for the blind in the city schools, but much of the matter he wishes to read is not available in the raised characters. His sister, six years older than he, does most of the reading for him.

The other members of the family read a lot to him, too," continues Miss Geissler. "I quit high school before I finished the course, so I have had a chance in this reading to make up some of what I missed. Next year he is going to the University of Chicago and eventually he is to study law. I'm not so interested in law."

Wins Scholarship.

"It isn't any burden to a family to have a member blind, provided he is like Herbert. Of course, sometimes he'll say, 'Read this to me, just a minute.' And that may mean an hour. But I like to read. It is surprising how independent and competent he is. In school affairs he is quite a commanding attitude, and he others come to him for directions."

impression of being simply a normal boy of exceptional ability, wanting no favors whatever because he was blind.

"He got the school war memorial scholarship of $200 for his first year in the university, but that wasn't at all because of his blindness," said Louis J. Block, the principal. "He simply had earned it by his excellent work. That is the only way he would accept it."

And Herbert himself credits his high standing to the others.

"I'm just an average chap," he says. "Why make a fuss over me anyhow? I am interested in school work. But I like baseball games, too, and the radio and newspapers."

Farmers' Picnic

Is Scheduled

Dickinson, July 16.—Dr. John Lee Coulter, president of the state agricultural college at Fargo, and Dr. P. F. Trowbridge, director of the extension division of the school, will be the speakers at a farmers' picnic and demonstration to be held at the Dickinson experiment station next Friday, July 20. Superintendent Leroy Moorman, of the station, who is arranging for the demonstration, hopes to make them of practical value to all farmers on the Slope and extends a cordial invitation to farmers and their families and townpeople as well to fill their lunch baskets and come to the station prepared to spend the day. The demonstration is planned to acquaint farmers of Stark county and the Slope with the work that is being accomplished at the station and the results that are being obtained through better farming methods and from experiments that are now under way. Through the holding of the picnic he hopes to be able to impress upon the people of the community that the station is maintained for their benefit, and hands ready at all times to assist the farmers with their problems.

MUTUALS FORM A NEW BODY
 Fargo, July 16.—A temporary organization of county mutual insurance companies of the state, the purpose of which will be to arrange reinsurance for all the county organizations, was completed in a meeting of the mutuals held at LaMoure, N. D. Wednesday and Thursday, according to John Martin of Fargo who has just returned from the meeting. He is treasurer of the Cass county mutual.

The organization effected will not begin to function as a reinsurance medium until its exact legal status has been determined, according to Mr. Martin who heads the committee appointed to look into the matter. It may be necessary to secure a law providing for such an organization as this one, before it can begin to function. Harold Magnuson of Bottineau county and Charles Chalmers of Hope are the other members of the committee.

The officers chosen for the new body are: George Dickinson of Brinsmade, president; Paul Goldate, Rugby, vice-president; and Harold Magnuson, Bottineau county, secretary and treasurer.

About one-half of the 46 county mutuals of the state were represented at the meeting according to Mr. Martin.

STOCK SOLD DESPITE ORDER
 Fargo, July 16.—Within five minutes after an order had been served upon them enjoining them from selling stock of Hebron Fire and Pressed Brick company shareholders who refused to pay a 10 percent assessment, Lawrence, Murphy & Nilles, attorneys for the company, proceeded with the sale. All of the stock, save one or two small items and the stock of Dr. E. C. Haegenson, of Grand Forks, on whose petition the enjoining order was issued, was bid in by the company.

Because the restraining order was not returnable and because a summons and complaint had not been filed by Dr. Haegenson, had not been served upon them, the company's attorneys disregarded the order.

Dr. Haegenson, through his attorney, Allen W. Wood, of Fargo, sought the order to restrain the sale of his stock and of other stockholders "similarly situated."

MARKET NEWS

CATTLE PRICES

UP FOR WEEK

South St. Paul, Minn. (Close of market Saturday).—Cattle receipts this week totaled around 12,400 compared with marketing of 6,714 last week. In spite of the larger receipts uneven price gains of 25c to 50c or more were registered. Higher markets for dressed product and a good demand from the shipping interests and country buyers being favorable influences.

Choice to prime grain-fed fat steers and yearlings are quotable up to around $11, with a few small lots in this week's trade selling at $10.50 to $10.85, best load lots $10, bulk between this price and $9. Grass-fat offerings of common and medium grades sold from $8 on up to around $8.50.

Fat sho stock was practically all of the grass variety, heifers selling largely at $5.50 to $7, cows $4 to $5.50. Canners sold largely at $2 to $2.50, cutters on up to $3.25. Bologna bulls sold from $4 to $5.25 at the close, relatively few under $4.50. Closing prices of best light veal calves ranged from $9.50 to $10.50, with bulk $9.75 or under. Seconds sold from $4.50 to $5.50 for the most part.

Prices of stocker and feeder steers were boosted 25c to 50c during the week. Strictly choice feeders are quotable up to $8.50, best going at $7.25, bulk $4.50 to $6.50. Thin steers of an inferior grade sold from $3 to $4, according to weight.

Hog receipts totaled about 59,000 here this week against about 41,000 a week ago and 49,500 a year ago. Seven principal markets had a run of about 640,000 hogs this week or a new record for this season of the year. Prices closed steady to around 15c lower for the week, closing range 5.50 to $7.10, bulk $6 to $7.10, bulk good pigs $6.25.

Bulk of the good fat lambs closed at $13.50, culls mostly $7.50 or $1 to $1.25 lower. Light and handy-weight fat ewes finished at $6, heavies mostly $3 to $3.25.

WHEAT PRICE

BREAKS AGAIN

Chicago, July 16.—Low price records for the season underwent a further break in the wheat market today in the early dealings. All deliveries dropped well below Saturday's finish. Much enlarged country offerings of wheat to arrive here had a decidedly bearish influence and so, too, had weakness in Liverpool quotations. The opening, which varied from unchanged futures to 3-4c and December $1.00 1-4 to $1.00 7/8 cents were followed by a slight rally and then another sag.

Subsequently as a result of the persistent hedging sales the market gradually declined and for the first time this season since 1914 the December delivery sold at less than $1.00 a bushel. Prices closed heavy, 14c to 15c lower, with September 96 1/2 to 96 3/4 and December 99 1/2 to 99 3/4.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN
 Minneapolis, July 16.—Wheat receipts 269 cars compared with 195 cars a year ago.

Cash No. 1 Northern $1.00 1/2 to $1.08 1/2; No. 1 Dark Northern spring July 99 1/2; December $1.02 1/2; September $1.00 1/2; choice to fancy $1.17 1/2 to $1.27 1/2; good to choice $1.07 1/2 to $1.16 1/2; ordinary to good $1.01 1/2 to $1.06 1/2.

Bismarck Takes 7 to 6 Victory
Saturday in Wild Finish;
Shut-out Sunday

FANS SEE MUCH ACTION

The Capitals and Jamkotans divided honors Saturday and Sunday, Bismarck taking the Saturday evening game by a score of 7 to 6, and Jamestown winning Sunday afternoon by a score of 6 to 0.

Bismarck, known as the tough luck team of the league, struck back last night, which was a relief to the fans who had seen the Capitals shut out Sunday.

Shortstop Nord was badly spiked in the hand by Tommy Meier of Jamestown Sunday. The injury to play in Sunday's game. The injury to play in Sunday's game.

Venemon, star pitcher of the North Dakota League and about the best in the Dakota League last year while with the champion Mitchell team with Dougan catching, was pitted against young Schanlaub Sunday.

It was a pitcher's duel for five innings and had not misplays given Jamestown runs it would have been a close one. Throckmorton allowed but three hits until the ninth. In the ninth with two out Williams hit a fly into right. Johnny Reider would have captured it easily but for his bad legs, and three more hits after that brought the score to six for the visitors.

Manager Tom Shanley's quick wit and knowledge of the game saved the contest for Bismarck Saturday evening, and in the ninth inning yesterday he prolonged the time of Bismarck at bat by the same avenue.

In the ninth inning Sunday, Reider hit safely and Joe Dougan relieved him as a runner. Immediately he was caught off first and the umpire nodded out. However, time had been called for the change of runners and play had not been started again. Shanley made his protest and the Jamestown club was called back from the dug-out to begin the inning.

Schanlaub, who had pitched one and one-half innings in the seventh inning, pitched all of the eighth and ninth. He pitched well and did not allow Bismarck a hit to that time. He blew up in the seventh, became wild and Bismarck began to hit. They made two runs in the seventh and five in the eighth. Al Bernier scored two with a terrific three-bagger to the right field fence and a sacrifice hit. Catcher Clark missed the throw home.

In the ninth inning Shanley batted the first ball and Meier bunted the next one. Noll, playing first, ran in for it, and first was uncovered. "Buck" Taylor threw to first but the throw was high and the ball went past. Chenoweth scored and Shanley protested that it was interference and the runner shouldn't score, and Chenoweth was sent back to third the second time. Wingfield was passed, filling the bases. Schanlaub hit a terrific line drive to left which looked good to break up the game. But Al Bernier made a wonderful catch at his knees and doubled Wenz at second.

The teams do not play today, Bismarck going to Valley City to play Tuesday.

Sister Spells "Eyes" To Chicago Youth

BY GEORGE BRIT.

Chicago, July 16.—Sister's eyes, of a blind youth, reveal an unmistakable prize, sinned strongly with desire to accept the facts as they are without sentimentality.

One gathers that attitude in talking to Carol Geissler, who for more than 10 years has been the playmate and sturdy helper of her brother, Herbert Geissler.

Herbert is 18 and was graduated from John Marshall High School this month as valedictorian of his class and first honor student. Last year he was a member of the debating team, which won the city championship and this year of a team which defeated a Buffalo (N. Y.) team.

Accident Did It.

There's no doubt about Herbert's mind being quicker and better informed than most boys, says the sister. "Why, you know, he even dances."

And then the desire not to boast except in and she adds:

"But he doesn't step out on the floor very much. He wanted to go to the junior prom this year. I had to go out and have my shoes shined afterward. But he'll make that, too, in time. He gets what he goes after."

Herbert has been blind since an accident when he was about 9 years old. He learned braille under the instruction of John B. Curtis, superintendent of instruction for the blind in the city schools, but much of the time he wishes to read is not available in the raised characters.

His sister, six years older than he, does most of the reading for him. "The other members of the family read a lot to him, too," continues Miss Geissler. "I quit high school before I finished the course, so I have had a chance in this reading to make up some of what I missed. Next year he is going to the University of Chicago and eventually he is to study law. I'm not so interested in Wins Scholarship.

"It isn't any burden to a family to have a member blind, provided he is like Herbert. Of course, sometimes he'll say, 'Read this to me, just a minute.' And that may mean an hour. But I like to read. It is surprising how independent and competent he is. In school affairs he has quite a commanding attitude, and the others come to him for directions."

At high school Herbert left the impression of being simply a normal boy of exceptional ability, wanting no favors whatever because he was blind.

"He got the school war memorial scholarship of $300 for his first year in the university, but that wasn't at all because of his blindness," said Louis J. Block, the principal. "He simply had earned it by his excellent work. That is the only way he would accept it."

And Herbert himself credits his high standing to the others.

"I'm just an average chap," he says. "Why make a fuss over me anyhow? I am interested in school work. But I like baseball games, too, and the radio and newspapers."

AT TOP, CAROL GEISSLER; BELOW, HERBERT GEISSLER, HER BLIND BROTHER.

How Business Depression Tests Good-Will

Many a manufacturer during the past two years has had an opportunity to measure as never before the real worth of his advertising investment.

He has seen his trade-marked line keep up in sales and his unadvertised goods shrink to a small fraction of their former volume. Innumerable instances could be cited.

Dealers can tell a similar story. The number of makes carried of each item have shrunk to a very few—the best known and most frequently called for. Dealers have changed their point of view; they no longer stock lightly with many brands, but substantially with a few.

Quick turnover is their only salvation in a depression and their real source of profit in a prosperous period.
